however, transferred all New Zealand specimens to another room, where shelves have been fitted to receive them. They are now available for study in comparative comfort. I have gone through and listed our stock of New Zealand animals, and have labelled and named those requiring this attention.

attention. The usual repairs to skeletons, re-filling of jars with alcohol, re-labelling of specimens, and other work necessary for the maintenance of the collections in good order, have been carried out. The Museum has been visited by a very large number of people; indeed, I have been quite surprised at the crowds that visit us on holidays and Sundays, and I must note, too, the orderliness of the people. It would be a matter of some interest to provide a turnstile, so as to have an accurate record of the number. I believe the fact would surprise many of our townsfolk. The skylights still give a good deal of trouble in bad weather, and the floor of the annex is sometimes nartially covered with water after a spell of rain.
