PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR ENDED 31st MARCH, 1939.

REPORT OF THE CONTROLLER AND AUDITOR-GENERAL.

I HAVE the honour to submit my report for the year ended 31st March, 1939, in terms of subsection (2), (3), and (4) of section 89 of the Public Revenues Act, 1926.

In connection with these reports, which the Controller and Auditor-General is required to submit to Parliament year by year, it is perhaps advisable that I should explain that it is necessary to comment only on a very small percentage of the matters affecting the Public Accounts which form the subject of inquiry during each year. It will be readily understood that in the vast majority of cases where questions regarding ordinary transactions are raised by Audit any adjustment necessary is made or a settlement is arrived at after discussion with the Treasury or the Department concerned, and there is no occasion therefore for reference to be made to these cases in the reports to Parliament.

The full Statement of the Receipts and Payments of the Public Account is contained in two parliamentary papers—namely, Parts I and II of B.-1. Part I shows, under main headings, the receipts and payments of the funds and accounts comprising the Public Account, and also shows details of the expenditure under the annual appropriations, Civil List, and the Unauthorized Expenditure Account, whilst Part II shows certain of the receipts and payments in greater detail than they are shown in B.-1 [Pt. I]. The last-mentioned paper for the year ended 31st March, 1939, has already been laid before Parliament and it only remains necessary for me now to present Part II.

Treatment of Exchange.

In the report of the Controller and Auditor-General each year since 1932 the attention of Parliament has been drawn to the unsatisfactory method which has been followed in connection with the treatment of exchange in the Public Accounts.

It is necessary to make remittances from time to time from New Zealand to London for the purpose of meeting the expenditure of the High Commissioner for Government services. By direction of the Minister of Finance, acting under the authority of the Finance Act, 1932, section 55, the cost of exchange on these remittances is charged to the Consolidated Fund, and any recoveries which are made are credited to that Fund.

The expenditure in London may be divided into two classes—(1) interest and (2) stores and material—and the following notes show the course which is followed in each case with reference to recovery of exchange:—

(1) Interest.—It was necessary to provide  $\pounds 5,283,000$  during the year ended 31st March, 1939, for the payment of interest in London, and the exchange on this amounted to approximately  $\pounds 1,320,750$ . The interest, in the first place, is paid from the Consolidated Fund, and the various accounts concerned reimburse that Fund.

The cost of exchange on the interest was paid from the Consolidated Fund, but no recovery of any portion has been made.

For example, interest paid in London on capital borrowed for the Electric Supply Account, amounting to £382,906, was duly recovered to the Consolidated Fund. However, the exchange on this interest, amounting to approximately £95,726, was not recovered, and the expenditure of the Electric Supply Account has therefore been understated by this amount. (2) Stores and Material.—With regard to the purchase of stores and material for which payment is made in London, the practice is to recover the cost of exchange from all the separate accounts within the Public Account against which the purchases have been debited. In the case, however, of the General Purposes Account of the Public Works Fund exchange is recovered only from the Post Office and Railways in respect of the purchases from the two votes—Telegraph Extension, and Railways Improvements and Additions to Open Lines. No exchange is recovered from Departments controlling the remaining votes in this account.

It should be stated that Consolidated Fund recovers the full cost of any remittances made for the services of Government accounts outside the Public Account (Post Office, State Fire Insurance, &c.).

As previously stated, the cost of exchange is charged to the Consolidated Fund under the authority of section 55, Finance Act, 1932, but no adjustments are made as regards exchange on the cost of material purchased from votes within the Consolidated Fund. Whilst this course does not affect the total expenditure from this Fund it has the effect of making the published figures of the votes in question misleading. The accounts of the Printing and Stationery Department provide an example and show clearly the effect of the non-charging of exchange. Some £102,287 was paid by this Department for overseas services during the year ended 31st March, 1939, but the cost of exchange thereon, approximating £25,572, remains as a charge against section 55, Finance Act, 1932, instead of a direct charge against the Department.

It is clear, therefore, that as the full cost of exchange is not brought to charge in the accounts of various Departments which are required to be prepared under the provisions of section 57, Finance Act, 1932, or in the accounts of a number of the commercial undertakings of the Government these accounts fail to disclose the true position.

In order to overcome the difficulty it is suggested that, instead of appropriating one sum for exchange in the Ordinary Revenue Account, each Department should be required to take a separate item in its estimates to cover the full amount of its exchange charges, and adjustment could then be made periodically with the exchange item which is a permanent charge under section 55, Finance Act, 1932.

This system would call for no far-reaching changes in the method of keeping the Public Accounts, and Consolidated Fund would as at present bear the original charge for exchange, but only until the adjustments are made with the votes or accounts concerned.

The departmental and commercial accounts would then show accurately the total cost of each undertaking.

Repayment of the Public Debt.

The following table gives particulars of the amount of securities redeemed during the year under the provisions of the Repayment of the Public Debt Act, 1925, and also the total of the amount as redeemed to 31st March, 1939:---

|  |  | Nominal Value   | of Securities.                                       |   |

In my last report I pointed out that for the first time since the inception of the present debt-repayment scheme the Public Debt Commission had redeemed debt on which interest was payable at a lower rate than  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. During the year ended 31st March, 1939, further securities, amounting altogether to £1,740,097 11s. 7d., bearing interest at 3 per cent. have been redeemed.

The contribution payable by the Ordinary Revenue Account to the Public Debt Repayment Account in terms of section 11 (b) of the Repayment of the Public Debt Act, 1925, is computed at the rate of  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. on the amount of the public debt redeemed under the provisions of this Act.

There will be no saving made by Ordinary Revenue Account on the amount of  $\pounds 1,740,097$  11s. 7d. 3-per-cent. debt redeemed, as the payment required to be made from that Account to the Public Debt Repayment Account will, in view of the terms of the above section, be  $\pounds 8,700$  9s. 9d. in excess of the amount previously required for the payment of interest.

With reference to the portions of the debt which are not subject to the Repayment of Public Debt Act particulars of the transactions of the sinking funds of the loans for which special sinking funds are provided will be found in Tables V and VI, B.-1 [Pt. III].

Particulars of the public debt funded as agreed upon by the Imperial Government on which by arrangement all instalments subsequent to 1st June, 1931, have been suspended will be found in Table IV, B.-1 [Pt. III].

The debt of the State Advances Account—£34,142,877 14s. 3d.—is the only portion of the public debt for which no special provision is made for repayment. This position arose as a result of the transfer of the securities of the State Advances Account to the State Advances Corporation in accordance with the provisions of section 36 of the State Advances Corporation Act, 1934–35, and full reference to the matter will be found in my last report.

The foregoing statement shows that the total public debt has been increased during the year by £13,768,930 3s. 9d.

The long-term debt was reduced by  $\pounds 181,069$  16s. 3d. and short-term Treasury bills increased by  $\pounds 13,950,000$ , as shown in the following summary :—

This statement does not include the advances made by the Reserve Bank to the Government by way of overdraft under the authority of the Primary Products Marketing Act, 1936, and the Primary Products Marketing Amendment Act, 1937, which at 31st March, 1939, amounted to  $\pounds7,235,461$  15s. 2d.

It will be seen that the additions to the debt during the year amounted to  $\pounds 16,752,379$  2s., and this sum, with the exception of  $\pounds 110,115$   $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. stock issued to the vendors as the purchase-price of properties acquired by the Government, was borrowed from the Reserve Bank and from the various Government and semi-Government accounts.

The reductions amounted to £2,983,448 18s. 3d., of which £1,756,617 11s. 7d. was redeemed from the Public Debt Repayment Account. As mentioned previously, all the latter sum, with the exception of £16,520, was 3 per cent. debt, and the rates of interest on the debt redeemed from other sources—viz., £1,226,831 6s. 8d.—varied from 3 per cent. to 5 per cent.

The following statement shows the rates of interest on the new borrowings and on the debt which has been redeemed :---

The greater portion of new debt was raised on the security of Treasury bills.

Until 1st November, 1938, the interest payable by the Treasury to the Reserve Bank on Treasury bills was  $1\frac{1}{4}$  per cent., but on that date the rate was increased to 2 per cent., and further increased to 4 per cent. on 22nd November. The rate of interest chargeable by the Reserve Bank should be the main determining factor in fixing the rate payable on the loan transactions between the various separate accounts of the Government, but no corresponding increases were made in the rate charged on transactions of this nature which took place after November.

As a result of this course being followed anomalies have arisen, inasmuch as advances have been made at lower rates than those which the lending accounts have had to pay for their borrowings.

Early in March, 1939, at the time when Ordinary Revenue Account was paying 4 per cent. to the Reserve Bank on moneys borrowed on the security of Treasury bills for revenue purposes, advances of £100,000 each were made from that account to the Main Highways and Housing Accounts at 2 per cent. These advances were outstanding at the close of the year and have since been repaid from moneys borrowed from the Reserve Bank at 4 per cent. The Public Account Cash Balance Investment Account, which is comprised of cash balances of all the accounts in the Public Account, in March, 1939, invested £1,000,000 in State Advances Corporation Stock at  $3\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. maturing on 1st June, 1944. Each of these transactions amounts in effect to the granting of a subsidy from the lending account to the borrowing one, which is nowhere disclosed in the Public Accounts.

Other transactions calling for comment were loans at 3 per cent. made to two local authorities in March, 1939, by the Housing Account at a time when the account was required to pay 4 per cent. for all new money raised from the Reserve Bank.

Section 72, Public Revenues Act, 1926.

"The Controller and Auditor-General may, with the consent of the Minister, dispense with the detailed audit of any accounts, but not with any appropriation audit of such accounts. The consent of the Minister shall be given only in those cases in which he considers that there are circumstances which render a detailed audit under this Act unnecessary: Provided that a list of such cases shall be comprised and published in the Controller and Auditor-General's report in each year."

During the year the Audit Office, acting with the consent of the Honourable the Minister of Finance, dispensed with a detailed audit of wages paid to temporary employees of the Post and Telegraph Department. The precautionary checks imposed by the General Post Office are designed to give complete control over wages paid in the several postal districts, and the experience of the Audit Office has been that the Department's internal check on wages is reliable. In the circumstances it was considered that the previously exhaustive Audit examination might safely be replaced by appropriate test checks.

This is the only instance in which the powers contained in section 72 have been invoked since my last report.

Control of Expenditure.

The following is a quotation from an English authority on public finance relative to parliamentary control of expenditure :---

"Direct charges on the consolidated fund are authorized by statute for the specific purposes and for such length of time, definite or indefinite, as are therein laid down. When once granted they become, in effect, continuing grants to the Treasury to be obtained on its requisition and issued for the purposes for which they are provided. They do not come up for annual review or criticism, and are to that extent removed from the control of the House of Commons after the statute has been passed. On the other hand, it is at any time within the power of Parliament to repeal such a statute and to transform the charge from a permanent to an annual The House therefore possesses continuously the potential right to one. exercise its supreme control in such cases. The fact, however, of the charges not being automatically brought under review necessarily withdraws them in a measure from the notice of Parliament, and there is a disinclination consequently to make such permanent charges in any cases which could be provided for without detriment by an annual vote. Such grants as those for the Civil List are advisedly charged directly on the Consolidated Fund with the specific intention of withdrawing them from annual criticism."

In New Zealand there is a tendency to provide for expenditure by permanent appropriation, and during the year  $\pounds 14,332,573$ , being slightly more than two-fifths of the expenditure from the Consolidated Fund, was a charge against the permanent appropriations.

Prior to the year 1932–33 pensions were paid under the permanent appropriations contained in the various Acts authorizing payment of pensions, but from 1st April, 1932, after a recommendation from the National Expenditure Commission, these pensions were included in the estimates and made subject to annual appropriation by Parliament. The recommendation of the Commission published in the interim report is as follows :---

"We consider that a change should be made in the method of providing each year for the amount required for pensions. In Great Britain the amount required for payment of pensions is voted annually by the Legislature, and we think that the system in New Zealand should be similar. This would ensure that the growing burden of pensions expenditure is subjected to parliamentary review each year."

Section 106 (1) (a), Social Security Act, 1938, changes this procedure, and the benefits, which are now provided for under Part II of that Act, replace pensions and will be subject to a permanent appropriation. Pensions amounting to  $\pounds 6,752,983$  were included in the estimates for the year and appropriated by Parliament. Of this total,  $\pounds 5,000,000$ , together with the sum representing the cost of the increased benefits conferred by the Social Security Act, will come under the permanent appropriations for the year ending 31st March, 1940.

In my last report reference was made to unauthorized expenditure, the limit of which was increased under the provisions of section 17 of the Finance Act, 1937, from £250,000 to £500,000 per annum, thus increasing the amount which the Government has power to make use of without immediately charging to a parliamentary appropriation.

This tendency to depart from the strict practice previously laid down by the legislation, by reducing the restrictions on the spending-power, no doubt allows greater freedom for the Government, but even the increased amount mentioned above proved insufficient to meet the charges made against the Unauthorized Expenditure Account during the year just ended. When this became apparent the Prime Minister gave an undertaking that legislation validating any over-issue in the Unauthorized Expenditure Account would be introduced at the forthcoming session of Parliament.

The excess was caused to a great extent by the fact that the Employment Promotion Fund was not in a position to recoup the various votes with the amounts which had been expended from these votes on behalf of the Fund.

I drew attention last year to the fact that the amount of £10,959 19s. 9d. issued in excess of the limit existing in the year ended 31st March, 1937, had not been validated in accordance with the undertaking given by the Prime Minister, and it was explained to me by the Treasury that it was considered that the limit had not been exceeded. The difference of opinion arose from the fact that the Audit Office regarded section 58 of the Public Revenues Act, 1926, as applying to issues, whilst the Treasury regarded it as applying to net expenditure. The Crown Law Office has since advised that the limit of £500,000 now existing applies to the gross total of "sums issued," and that the fact that certain amounts may be recovered does not take such amounts out of the category "sums issued."

The details of the expenditure from the Unauthorized Expenditure Account appear in parliamentary paper B.-1 [Pt. I], which has already been laid before Parliament, and it will be seen that the statutory limit of  $\pounds 500,000$  which may be issued has been exceeded by  $\pounds 624,470$  4s. 9d.

Surplus Credits-in-aid.

A further matter in connection with the control of expenditure by Parliament to which I desire to draw attention is that of the abnormal increase in the total of surplus credits-in-aid during the year. Section 51 (3), Public Revenues Act, 1926, provides that any surplus in respect of a vote arising from an excess of the moneys actually received as credits-in-aid over the amount estimated to be received may, with the approval of the Treasury, be temporarily applied for the purpose of that vote in defraying expenditure which is not adequately provided for by appropriation.

To enable control to be maintained, Parliament, by means of a vote, appropriates the net estimated expenditure and the estimated credits-in-aid before the expenditure is made by a Department, but by the use of excess credits-in-aid a great deal of expenditure may be made without the prior approval of Parliament. Control can be fully effective only when applied before expenditure is made, and although surplus credits applied are sanctioned by Parliament this is not done until the Appropriation Act of the next year is passed.

Surplus credits-in-aid applied during the year as shown in B.-1 [Pt. I] amounted to  $\pounds 1,602,572$  14s. This sum, together with unauthorized expenditure of  $\pounds 1,124,470$  4s. 9d., makes a total of  $\pounds 2,727,042$  18s. 9d. that has been expended without the prior approval of Parliament. Of the expenditure from unauthorized,  $\pounds 24,787$  3s. 11d. was recovered.

It is, of course, recognized that Parliament is unable to foresee and provide for every item of expenditure, and the Public Revenues Act, 1926, enables a limited amount of necessary and urgent expenditure to be made and later approved by Parliament, but it would appear from the above total that consideration should be given to the revision of the existing authority regarding the use of surplus credits-in-aid.

Summary of the Transactions of the Ordinary Revenue Account.

The cash balance at the beginning of the year has been added to the surplus and any deficit subtracted, and the manner in which the moneys remaining have been applied is also shown :—

Except for the "Miscellaneous" items the statement will be found selfexplanatory. The details of miscellaneous receipts show that in the year 1925–26, £475,992 was received from Consols Account, which was closed. The remainder of the amount received in that year—viz., £186,227—was credited on account of reparations, as also was £39,307 in the following year. The amounts received in the years 1931–32, 1932–33, and 1933–34 total £24,036,981 and represent the proceeds of Treasury bills issued under the provisions of the Public Revenues Act, 1926, and the Banks Indemnity Exchange Act, 1932–33. These bills were repaid from Ordinary Revenue Account, £21,326,981, and Public Debt Repayment Account, £2,710,000, in the year 1934–35. The latter payment does not, of course, appear in the statement, whilst the former is included in the item of £22,927,193 appearing in the column " Redemption of Debt."

Miscellaneous advances and transfers totalling  $\pounds 2,427,131$  were made—  $\pounds 1,200,000$  to Reserve Fund,  $\pounds 100,000$  to Education Loans Account,  $\pounds 473,392$  to Working Railways Account,  $\pounds 45,000$  to State Forests Account,  $\pounds 5,000$  to Westport Harbour Account,  $\pounds 531,416$  for Unemployment Relief, and  $\pounds 33,323$  for earthquake relief.

During the year a loan of £39,000 made to the Waikato Land Settlement Association was cancelled in terms of section 19, Reserve and other Lands Disposal Act, 1938.

Departmental Accounts and Balance-sheets.

As mentioned at the commencement of this report, particulars of the receipts and payments of the Public Account in accordance with the provisions of the Public Revenues Act, 1926, will be found in B.-1 [Pts. I and II]. Under the provisions of section 57 of the Finance Act, 1932, all Government Departments are required to prepare income and expenditure accounts and balance-sheets which may be viewed as complementary to the above-mentioned cash accounts. The examination of these departmental accounts, which are produced in the form usually adopted in commercial practice, involves considerable work on the part of the Audit Office, and it has not so far been found practicable to complete it in time to permit of all the accounts for the year being laid before Parliament in the next ensuing session. The greater portion of the accounts for the year ended 31st March, 1938, was presented last session in parliamentary paper B.-1 [Pt. IV], and the remaining accounts will be found in B.-1 [Pt. IV, sup. to 1938], which will be laid before Parliament in the near future.

Considerable progress has been made of recent years in expediting the audit of these accounts, and, provided their preparation is not delayed, I am hoping that before long it will be possible to complete the examination for any year in such time as will permit of their being presented to Parliament during the ensuing session.

The departmental accounts reflect, of course, the receipt and payment of all public moneys, whether raised by loan or otherwise, and it will be noted that at the 31st March, 1939, the loan capital accounts in the balance-sheets referring to the following assets and undertakings correspond in total to the public debt—

At the date of the inauguration of the departmental accounts the actual cost of most assets or undertakings in connection with which loan-moneys had been expended was known and the relative loan capital accounts were opened with the correct figures, but, in cases where the cost was not ascertainable without incurring considerable expense in research, a valuation of the assets was made in order to establish the opening entries.

In my last report I drew attention to a number of instances where expenditure had been incurred for which no specific authority existed, but which, in order not to embarrass the Government unduly, the Audit Office agreed to pass on receiving from the Prime Minister his assurance that validating legislation would be introduced at an early date. In the following cases it was necessary for the Audit Office to agree to pass expenditure on receipt of undertakings of this nature :— 3

Forests Act, 1921-1922.

When the balance-sheet for the State Forests Department for the year ending 31st March, 1938, came before Audit it was observed that assets were included under the heading of a Tobacco Scheme, and it was further disclosed upon inquiry that further assets of a similar type were acquired from the Department of Agriculture. The Audit Office raised the question as to whether the Department had any legal authority to engage in the tobacco-growing industry, and it was decided, after securing the opinion of the Crown Law Office, that such authority did not exist.

On an assurance being given by the Prime Minister that validating legislation would be forthcoming at the next session of Parliament, the accounts were passed by the Audit Office.

Electoral Act, 1927.

A grant of £140 was paid by the Government to Mr. J. Hodgens, Member of Parliament, when proceeding to Australia for the purpose of engaging tradesmen for the building trade in New Zealand. As the payment contravened the provisions of the Electoral Act, 1927, the Audit Office was unable to pass the expenditure, but on an assurance being given by the Prime Minister that legislation validating the payment would be introduced the expenditure was passed by the Audit Office.

Primary Products Marketing Act, 1936, and Amendments, 1937.

Section 6 of the Primary Products Marketing Amendment Act, 1937, authorizes the Department to fix wholesale or retail prices at which dairy-produce and certain other foodstuffs may be bought or sold in New Zealand, and section 12 of the same Act provides for the equalization, as far as practicable, of the net returns received or payable in respect of dairy-produce or other foodstuffs to which section 6 applies by the payment of such sums as the Minister may approve in any case where—

- (a) Such dairy-produce or other foodstuffs have been acquired by the Department; or
- (b) The Department has fixed prices or conditions governing the purchase and sale of any such dairy-produce or other foodstuffs by or to persons other than the Department.

In July, 1938, a retrospective increase was made in the price of cheese manufactured and exported after 31st July, 1937, and in order to assure an equivalent net return to all cheese-manufacturers the Minister later approved of an equalizing payment of 0.21d. per pound being made in respect of cheese manufactured after 31st July, 1937, but not exported.

It was pointed out by the Audit Office that section 12 applied only to cases where the Department had acquired the dairy-produce or had fixed prices or conditions of purchase and sale, and as the Department had not fixed prices or conditions governing the purchase and sale of cheese which was not exported there was no authority for the additional payments in respect of the cheese which had not been acquired by the Department.

Audit, however, agreed to pass the expenditure involved on the assurance of the Minister that validating legislation would be introduced. The Minister has issued instructions for the Department to prepare the necessary clause for the next Finance Bill.

Failure to promote Validating or Amending Legislation in Terms of an Undertaking by the Government.

In my report of last year I drew attention to the inherent dangers which exist in following the practice referred to under the previous heading, and I am pleased to be able to report that there are no cases this year in which the Government has omitted to introduce validating legislation where it was promised; but I regret

Dairy-produce Act, 1923.

The accounts of the New Zealand Dairy Board for the year ended 31st July, 1938, contain an item "Guaranteed Price Investigation (Part), £456 5s. 8d.", which represents expenditure incurred by the Board in collecting data and in the preparation of evidence for submission to the Guaranteed Prices Advisory Committee, 1938. Audit was unable to find any statutory authority which would enable it to pass the expenditure incurred in connection with this investigation, and accordingly an exception to this effect was included in the audit certificate on the balance-sheet. The Minister of Finance has advised the Board that legislation will be introduced during the present session of Parliament to validate this expenditure.

Statement of Royalties payable to the Crown and unpaid at the 31st March, 1939.

Section 91 (2) of the Public Revenues Act, 1926, reads as follows :---

"The Controller and Auditor-General shall include in the report to be prepared by him pursuant to subsection two of section eighty-nine hereof a statement as to all royalties payable to the Crown and for the time being unpaid, setting forth in respect of such royalties—

"(a) The name of the person by whom the same are payable;

- "(b) The amount payable by each such person; and
- "(c) The steps (if any) that have been taken to recover the said royalties, and, if no such steps have been taken, the reasons for allowing the said royalties to remain outstanding."

These provisions were first imported into the statutes by section 24 of the Public Revenues Amendment Act, 1913, but as far as I can ascertain no attempt was made to comply with the requirements of this section until 1927.

In that year the Controller and Auditor-General drew attention in his report to this omission, and mentioned that he had obtained the necessary information from the respective Departments, but that he had experienced many difficulties in preparing a return which would comply with the Act and at the same time avoid unfairness to the individuals whose names were required to be published.

On that occasion the information was shown in an abridged form, and a similar course has been followed each year. Since 1927 suggestions have been made from time to time that the law should be amended, and when dealing with the matter in my report of last year I stated that in future I proposed to follow the requirements of the statute by publishing details as to the names of persons by whom royalties are owing and outstanding at the end of the year unless Parliament indicated otherwise. The statutory position has not been altered, however, but on further consideration of the question I feel that some injustice may be done by publishing this information.

Examination of the accounts reveals that quite a considerable proportion of the debts have been liquidated since the 31st March, and in the case of one Department, in respect of which a total amount of  $\pounds 2,378$  4s. 11d. was outstanding, the sum of  $\pounds 1,826$  1s. 3d. has been paid by debtors up to the 31st May, 1939, whilst further small payments have been since received. It seems, therefore, quite invidious and unreasonable to publish such particulars concerning debts arising from royalties without publishing like particulars of any of the numerous other debts due to the Crown.

B.—1 [Pt. II].

В.—1 [Рт. II].

I have come to the conclusion that the procedure which was adopted in the past of publishing the amounts only of royalties due has been satisfactory, but it is highly desirable that Parliament should give some indication as to whether it wishes the detailed information to be supplied.

Audit of Public Stores.

During the period under review Inspectors examined 399 financial and store accounts in the following Government Departments: Prisons, Public Works, Health, Navy, Army, Air, Education, Marine, Mines, State Forest Service, Industries and Commerce, Tourist and Publicity, Agriculture, Mental Hospitals, Native, Railways, Post and Telegraph Stores, Lands and Survey, Internal Affairs, Printing and Stationery, and Transport. In addition, a continuous audit has been made of the various financial and store accounts of the New Zealand Division of the Royal Navy.

The position in regard to the audit of offices and accounts has been maintained during the year, but due to the increase in the volume of financial and store transactions in various Departments, it has not been possible to reduce the outstanding work to any appreciable extent. I may say that, while all cash transactions are checked in detail by my Inspectors, the audit of store transactions must of necessity be confined to a test check with the object of ascertaining, inter alia, whether the accounting systems are functioning satisfactorily and the various rules and regulations are being observed. In some cases Departments have adopted suggestions made by the Audit Office to strengthen the internal check and improve the systems of accounting for stores.

Several cases involving the misappropriation of public stores were dealt with by the Audit Office during the year. In each case the matter was placed in the hands of the police for investigation and appropriate action. The detection of misappropriation of public stores presents many difficulties, but in all cases where losses have occurred under circumstances indicative of theft the Departments concerned have been required to obtain reports from the police in connection with the losses. Particulars of these losses are contained in the statement of irregularities in connection with public moneys and stores which is included in my report in accordance with the provisions of section 89 (2) (c) of the Public Revenues Act, 1926.

I am pleased to be able to report that in most Departments adequate records are maintained to record the receipt and issue of stores.

Audit of Accounts of Local Authorities.

Although a considerable amount of extra work devolved on the inspecting staff by reason of an increase in State activities during the year under review, the satisfactory position outlined in my report last year regarding the auditing of accounts of local authorities has been maintained.

The Local Bodies' Finance Act, 1921-22, was enacted to ensure that local authorities should provide for their ordinary obligations and engagements in any year out of their revenues for that year, and it is regrettable that in the year under review thirty-one of them failed to live up to the statutory requirements. There are certain weaknesses in the Act which have contributed to its failure to act always as a brake on excessive borrowings and commitments, but as they have been commented on in reports by my predecessor it is unnecessary to refer further to them here than to say that they still obtain. It has also been stated in the past that the application of strict budgetary control of expenditure would assist local authorities to avoid financial difficulties, and I am in agreement with that statement.

Under the provisions of section 3 of the Local Authorities (Members' Contracts) Act, 1934, thirteen members of local authorities were disqualified from acting as members by reason of their interest in contracts entered into by their local authorities. The action which the Audit Office takes respecting disqualifying contracts may often appear harsh to the local authority concerned, especially to the member on whom disqualification falls. In most cases it seems clear that no moral turpitude is involved and that the breach of the statute is the result of inadvertence or ignorance of the law, but the Audit Office does not possess any discretion in applying the relative statutory provisions.

During the year the Audit Office was required to deal with four cases of misappropriation of funds by local-body officials, the particulars of which were in each case referred to the police for any necessary action by them. The total sum involved in these misappropriations was  $\pounds 1,310$  8s. 2d., while the largest sum misappropriated by any one official was  $\pounds 748$  14s. 5d.

As previously reported, several County Councils within the Taranaki Provincial District have adopted the practice of refraining from the collection of heavy-trafficlicense fees in respect of farmers' private motor-lorries used in carting milk to factories. These fees are properly payable in terms of the Heavy Motor-vehicle Regulations and should be collected, but the Audit Office has no statutory power to surcharge the Councillors responsible for the non-collection of the fees, although it appears open for any interested ratepayer to take appropriate action in the Courts to compel the Councils to collect the fees. If the Legislature deems it wise that local authorities should have an option of collection or non-collection, it is desirable that the law should provide accordingly.

As a result of the local-body elections held in May, 1938, and by reason of the difficulties experienced by local authorities in reaching an agreement as to the reasonable additional costs payable by Electric-power Boards and Harbour Boards in those cases where the elections for such Boards were held in conjunction with the elections of Borough or County Councils, the Audit Office was on numerous occasions requested to determine costs which were in dispute. The matter has been made more difficult by an effort on the part of County Clerks, acting as returning officers at the elections, to charge on the basis of a scale agreed upon among themselves in respect of returning officers' fees, irrespective of many different circumstances ruling in different cases.

Breaches of law relating to the accounts of local authorities with which the Audit Office was concerned during the year are detailed below in Schedule A. Other matters which, although not breaches of law on the part of the local authorities, the Audit Office felt called upon to refer to in its certificates to the several accounts are set out in Schedule B. In regard to these matters the necessary action was taken by the Audit Office to obtain an adjustment of the accounts or a recovery of moneys which had been unlawfully expended except in those cases (comprising Schedule C below) where assurances were given by the local authorities concerned that they would make application for the introduction of legislation validating the irregularities. In numerous instances during the early part of the year exception was taken to the expenditure by local authorities in connection with the King George V Memorial Fund, the Coronation Celebrations, the New Zealand Centennial Exhibition, and, in the case of Rabbit Boards, the destruction of rabbits on private lands, but as in each case the necessary provision was subsequently made by legislation they have been omitted from the schedules.

Surcharges.

Pursuant to the provisions of section 69 of the Public Revenues Act, 1926, it is necessary for me to surcharge any person who, through his default, negligence, or error, may be considered responsible for any deficiency or loss of public moneys or stores. Section 69 is mandatory in its terms, but section 71 provides that, upon appeal, the Minister of Finance may give full or partial relief in respect of any surcharge.

During the financial year I found it necessary to issue the following surcharges :----

|  | Number of Officerssurcharged. | Number of Surcharges. | Amount.  |
|--|-----------------------------------|-----------------------|--|
| Department of LabourDepartment of AgricultureDepartment of Lands and SurveyTransport DepartmentPost and Telegraph Department | 172111            |                       | $\begin{array}{cccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccccc$ |
|  | 22                                | 17                    | £335 5 1   |

Two officers elected to meet their surcharges without appeal, the Minister of Finance directed full payment in one case, gave total relief in respect of fourteen surcharges, and partial relief in respect of another.

The following table explains how the surcharges were satisfied :---

|                              |                     | Without Appeal.              | Upon Appea                   | l to Minister.                                       | m   |  |

I have to report that all surcharges issued prior to 31st March, 1939, have been satisfied.

The foregoing statement of irregularities is presented pursuant to the requirements

The irregularities by of section 89 (2) (c) of the Public Revenues Act, 1926. departmental officers are fewer in number and smaller in amount than those reported last year, and there should be very little ultimate loss of public moneys in connection therewith when restitution orders have been satisfied. Six irregularities occurred in the branches of the Public Service under control of the Public Service Commissioner, only one of which was of any magnitude. This was the case of an officer of the Pensions Department who withheld departmental receipts to a value of £155 and embezzled a further £62 by forging signatures to vouchers. The irregularities in the Post and Telegraph Department were both small and cannot be regarded as pointing to weaknesses in the accounting system. Of the fifteen irregularities in the Railways Department all were small with the exception of one case of misappropriation of cash and another involving the theft of stores. In neither of these cases was there an ultimate loss of public moneys, nor were they made possible through deficiencies in the accounting system.

It is not necessary for me to comment on the irregularities shown as having been committed by persons other than departmental officers except to state that every case has been placed in the hands of the police for inquiry and action.

However deplorable these breaches of trust may be, it is inevitable that from time to time there will be losses of public moneys and stores by peculation on the part of departmental employees. No system of accounting, however perfect, can prevent embezzlement, but much can be done, by means of internal checks, towards detection in its early stages.

The Audit Office, in the course of its duties, examines the systems of internal check operating in Government offices, and I propose, wherever possible, to require regular periodical certificates from the officers who are responsible for seeing that the internal check instituted by the Department is being maintained.

Staff.

I would like to place on record my appreciation of the able and willing manner in which the officers of the Audit Department have met their responsibilities during the past year. Whilst all officers have discharged their onerous duties to my complete satisfaction, I should like to make special reference to the loyal support and assistance I have received from my Deputy and the senior officers of the Department. Although the volume and complexity of Government expenditure shows a steady upward trend, the staff of the Audit Department has not been materially increased since my last report. The loss of experienced officers by resignation, retirement, transfer, and death has been barely counterbalanced numerically by the recruitment of junior officers, and in these circumstances the desirability of increasing the Department's present strength of trained officers will require serious consideration in the future. I have considered it sound policy that as far as possible additional staff should be recruited as juniors who would receive early training in the specialized requirements of the Department, and I am confident that a continuance of this policy will be in the best interests of the Audit Office.

One pleasing manifestation of the zeal of the younger officers is the yearly increase in the number of those who have qualified themselves by examination for recognition as accountants, while many officers have continued their studies to include a University degree. I have been happy to encourage officers to improve their opportunities and at the same time to enhance their value as servants of the State.

I referred in my last report to the success of the conference of Audit Inspectors, and during the past year I was able to arrange a conference of officers who are examining Government accounts in the larger centres, and I am satisfied that the efficiency of these officers will be considerably increased as a result of the interchange of ideas and of the instruction received at the conference.

I wish, finally, to acknowledge the valuable assistance rendered to the Audit Office by the Law Officers of the Crown and to state that the Permanent Heads of Government Departments have consistently met Audit representations with every courtesy.

J. H. FOWLER,

Controller and Auditor-General.

Audit Office, Wellington, 8th August, 1939.
