

Colonel Winter, R.A.M.C., Officer Commanding the Deccan Hospital, was charmingly attired in a dress of white ivory charmeuse with ninon top and white picture hat, and carried a shower bouquet of white flowers. She was attended by Sisters Farquahar and Campbell as bridesmaids, both of whom looked dainty in their gowns of blue, and carried bouquets of pink roses. Major Macfie, of the bridegroom's regiment, Assistant Judge Advocate-General to the Southern Army, acted as "best man." After the ceremony a reception was held at the Nurses' Quarters by the matron and sisters of the Deccan Hospital, after which the happy couple left for Khandala amid the good wishes of their numerous friends. The bride's going-away dress was of cream gabardine, with hat of pink georgette veiling roses. Miss de Veaux is well known in Christchurch, where she was nursing for some time.

Sister Kathleen Macgregor was married on Wednesday, July 2nd, to Sergeant Gordon Peek, now attached to the Chalmers Military Orthopaedic Hospital, Christchurch. The ceremony was held at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Winks, at Oriental Bay, only a few relations and intimate friends were present, among whom were Mrs. Evans (Sister Frances Gilmore) a fellow-sister on the hospital ship Maroma and her husband. The matron-in-chief was also present.

NASH—CARRUTHERS.—A quiet wedding took place at the Cathedral, Nelson, on Wednesday, when Staff-Sergeant James Henry Nash, N.Z.M.C., second son of Mr. N. H. Nash (who is well known throughout New Zealand as one of the proprietors of the "Manawatu Standard," Palmerston North), was married to Sister Hannah Carruthers, N.Z.A.N.S., only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Carruthers, of Nelson. The bride was attended by Sister T. D'Emden, N.Z.A.N.S., both of them having recently returned from service in the New Zealand hospitals in France and England. Corporal E. J. Wilson, of Wellington, was best man. The bride was given away by Mr. T. Pettit, an erstwhile Mayor of Nelson. Both the bride and bridegroom and their attendants wore their military uniforms. The service was performed by Dean Weeks.

Resignations, Appointments, Etc.

Mrs. Gladys Henning, the first lady to receive full membership of the Auckland Returned Soldiers' Association, is at present in Dunedin on a short visit, states the "Star." Mrs. Henning, wife of the late Second Lieutenant Henning, M.C., well known in New Zealand motoring circles, has had two years' service abroad with the New Zealand Transport, and was formerly a V.A.D. in the hospitals in Egypt. She was ambulance driving at Walton Hospital (England) for a time, then was transferred to the Convalescent Camp at Hornchurch, where she took charge of the ambulance department. Mrs. Henning's uniform is attracting curiosity in Dunedin. Sometimes she is taken for a policewoman, and again for a scout mistress.

Miss Mackesy returned to the Dominion in the "Prinzessen." She also was a motor ambulance driver, and desires if possible not to be demobilised, but to resume work in New Zealand after completion of her leave.

Sister Margaret Smith resigned the matronship of the Karitane Baby Hospital, Christchurch, on April 23rd. She is now in charge of the Taurangi Home, Ashburton.

Sister Jessie Falconer, who recently returned from service abroad, with the Queen Alexandra Reserve in Egypt, Salonika, and England, has been appointed matron of the Kaikoura Cottage Hospital.

Nurse Williams, of the Christchurch General and the St. Helens Hospitals, is assistant nurse.

Nurse Maundrell, who has for a long time been a patient in Otaki Sanatorium, has been on a visit to Napier for a few weeks. Her friends will be pleased to hear that she was well enough to be allowed the change away.

Mrs. Hargest (Sister Marie Wilkie), who recently returned to New Zealand after active service, having gone out with the first contingent, wrote from Southland saying that she hoped soon to be settled with her husband in her own home in the country.
