KOLYNOS

DENTAL CREAM

(MADE IN ENGLAND)

TOOTH DECAY and PREGNANCY

Teeth are more susceptible to decay during pregnancy. At the gum margin where the enamel is thin, sensitiveness is first felt and often these areas develop caries.

Frequent examination and regular brushing of the teeth and gums is not only advisable but imperative during this period.

When instructing your patients during the period of pregnancy, recommend Kolynos Dental Cream and observe the result of keeping their mouths clean, wholesome and sanitary.

Sister W. E. White, A.R.R.C., is at present staying with her sister, Mrs. D. McLeod, at Mt. Bruce, Masterton.

Sister Peggy Wood, Private Hospital, Invercargill, motored through the South Island, and as far as Napier in the North Island, with Dr. and Mrs. Hogg and their daughters, who visited Rotorua in February. After a very enjoyable but hurried visit to friends in the North Island, Mrs. Wood rejoined Dr. and Mrs. Hogg at Wellington, and they motored home to Invercargill from Picton.

Nurse Ivy L. J. Cornish, trained at Napier Hospital, left New Zealand on Friday, 1st April, to visit friends and relations in Sydney and England.

From recent letters received from Sisters T. Butler and Rose Fanning, at Durban, they appear to have had a delightful trip across, and a very pleasant fortnight's holiday before starting work. Their present address is C/o Miss McCulloch, 26 Noble Road, Durban, where they have been fortunate enough to secure rooms with two Scotch ladies.

Miss Evelyn Watson, formerly on the staff of the Apia Hospital, Samoa, is returning to Samoa by the boat leaving Auckland on March 26th, where she will be married to Mr. Morrison. Her future home will be in the adjoining island of Savai'i.

Miss H. Maclean left Wellington for Sydney on the 14th April. During her absence (which will be for about six months) the editorial work in connection with Kai Tiaki will be undertaken by Miss Inglis.

Sister Calder, A.R.R.C., ex N.Z.A.N.S., is taking her maternity and midwifery course at St. Helens.

Nurse Crichton, who recently completed her training at the Dunedin Hospital, is also taking her obstetric course.
