chivalry. They have been made unhappy and have made the men unhappy. For years now, gentle ladies, you have stood on your podestia, and found them only breeding spots for discon-tent. We foolish mes put you there, but we cannot take you down. So why not eave the situation yourelves ? Why not come down, trip down gracefully, smilingly, of your own accord? Is would be better for you, better for you, better for the nation. Take a few lessons from good old Europe and everything will be lovely ? What have put down here is said in carnettees and with conviction, though portions may sound strangely to whose who have not given the subject careful thought-which anggests the remark that it might be well for this country if more people in it did serious thinking now and then !

A CHINESE LEGEND ABOUT MUSIC.

HOW THE DIVINE ART WAS REDUCED TO A SYSTEM.

"THE legend tells us that Lyng-Lun wandered, deep in thought, to the land of Lijoimig, where the bamboos grow. He took one, cut a piece of it between two of the knots, and having puebed out the pith, blew into the hollow, whereby he produced a beautiful tone, like the sound of his own voice. At this moment, the river Hoang-ho, which ran boiling along a few paces off, roared with its waves, and the noise it made was also in unison with the sound of Lyng-Lun's beautiful voice, and the sound of the bamboo.

Lun's beautiful voice, and the sound of the bamboo. ""Behold them," orded Lyng Lun, "the fundamental sound of nature !" And as he was musing on this wonder-ful coincidence, the magic bird Foung-hoang and his mate came flying along. They perched on a tree, and began to sing. Imagine the delight of our musician when he found that their song was also in unison with the sounds of the river, the bamboo and his own voice. Then all the winds were hushed, and all the birds of the air wereailent, as they listened to the song of the nuagic bird and his mate.

listence to the song of the magic bird and his make. 'As they sang, Lyng, Lun, who had found his opportunity and, like a wise man, meant to use it, kept enting bamboos, and tuning them to the notes of the birds, six to the notes of the male and six to the notes of the firstle. When they had finished singing, Lyng-lun had twelve bamboos cut and thued, which he bound together and took to the king, and they gave forth the twelve notes of our modern chromatic scale. ecale ecale. 'The odd notes, F, G, A, B, C sharp, D sharp were the nate notes, and the even notes F sharp, G sharp, A sharp, C, D, E, were the female, and with that partiality for the masculine sex which is not peculiar to the Chinese, they pronounced the six odd or male notes perfect, and called them "Yang," and the six even or female notes they pro- nonneed imperfect, and called them "Yau"? The min able has made an entrie are noted in a which is

The writer thicks that, with an origin so postic, we might certainly have expected music to develop into something which would justify its being called in China, as with us, "the Divine Art, but, according to her account, a Chinese orchestra is the most strocions, ear-splitting performance one could possibly listen to. Still, as abs remarks, there are two sides to every question, and the Chin-se and Japanere trained musicians listen to the efforts of W. and the chi-or ching, is said by the writer to be the most pleasing of Chinese instruments, and she tells us, apparently with-out the sliphtest attempt at humour, that 'it seems to be something akin to the Scotch bagpipes.' Another instru-ment, the ou, is a very poetic conception. It is described on its back, like the teeth of a saw, and is played by scraping these with a stick.

DEAR BEE, PEDRUGAL CONTROL OF A few tennie parties there is nothing going on. Of course I must not forget the

ANTAL UUNIC OPERA COMPANY, who opened their season here on Monday night to a crowded house. They played 'M Mie Rocetta'. Mies Nelid Sizewart is a charming actreast, and her dresses are lovely. She has also a sweetly graphtheito volce. There is no need to say that she is already a great favourize with the audiences. Mr J. Tapley has a very fine volce, and has froquently to repeat his songs. 'Paul Jonse's the next piece to be staged. I hear it is very good. All the
