

The Pope granted Mr. Sudden a private audience

"Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall."

and there the simile ends, because "All his supporters and the majority of his constituents have hoisted Mr. Ward into Parliament again"

"Humpty Dumpty had a great fall."

A thundering nuisance.

Risks defying the Gov. lightning

And the Wellington Civil Servants said one to the other, "Go to, let us make to ourselves a Co-operative Store like unto, and after the manner of those in other lands, so that we pay not through the nose, neither waste our monthly cheque." But the Government of the People because of the fear which was in them of the people which were in trade in Wellington said, "Let us go to too, and put a stop to these things, lest peradventure the tradespeople arise in their wrath and slay us." So they arose in their majesty and said unto the servants which were Civil "Drop this thing which you propose to do." And the servants which were extremely civil (not to say servile) dropped it even as one droppeth a potato which is hot. And there the matter rests
