(From Our Special Correspondent.)

LONDON, November 30.

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Those who attended the closing days of the Liverpool Autumn Meeting at Antiree were rewarded for their contempt of the elements by some excellent aport, including one of the most exciting dulishes ever witnessed on a racecourse. This was on Friday in the Liverpool Autumn Cup, which in its day has furnished some grand finishes. Just year Throwaway and King's Courtee and dead-heat, with Polisson only a short head behind third, and Scatlino and another lorse locked together another horse head behind there are nother horse head behind there are nother horse head behind there was the first four the first four, whilst the provential was arrived at the first matter of heads between the first four, whilst the provential sheet would have cavered the first claft or then of the fourteen competitors. The whater proved to he Palmy Days, a three-year-old filly by Troton out of the Barcaldine mare Pallausa, owned by Mr. J. G. Baird, and carrying 6st 9b. Her victory gave Trenton a machineeded lift in the schedule of whinding stres, for the race was worth £1075. Opposed to Palmy Days for this 11-furloug eyent were these, 4crs, Britton and the chance of Burses, which started at 7 to 2 against, Backelor's Button and Palmy Days being well backed at stave, and the rest figuring at from 7 to 1 to 40 to 1. A long time was ent to waste at the post through the fractionsness of Throwaway and Backelor's Button, and the latter produced a faise start by kicking the lever of the field, and kept there till Pellisson headed head, and kept there till Pellisson headed her at the Canal turn. So they can till entering the straight, where l'aluny Days ence more assumed the lead, only to be at once vigorously challenged by balf a dozen competition. For a few strides half the field was racing in a dead line, but some dropped back, and in the last 30 yards the issue lay between l'aimy Days. Whistling frow, Likely Bird and Bachelor's Button. Locked together they nashed past the post. Which had won only the judge could fell, and the holsting of the numbers was awaited in the dead slence telling of intense excitement. Then a roar wont up from leiny Days backers as the fill's number (14) was run up, swifting followed by that of Whistling Crow (10), Backer'or's Rutton (2), and Likely Bird (17), "Short heads between each!" was the official verdier. We were each!" was the official verdier. We for any strength of the order termed "illugitimete." namely, the Grand Setton Steeplechase, a handlers worth £412, and decided over three miles of the Grand National course, which has been won by such grand 'chasers as Lottery, Roquetorh, and 'Colster, the latter whaning in 1892 under 12st 7th, and again 1894 under the "crusher" of 13.3. The field on Thursday last numbered 14, but the first fence proved fatail to a comple of compellors, the second brought down another, leaving only nine on their legs. Leinster, 22.7, in spite of his heavy burden, began to overhand this favourite, and, carching Saxilly near home, won comfortably by a length, Hill of Bree (11.0) being third some distance off. Lecister's performance was versien, and a should with ordinary line credit his owner with a Grand National before his racing days are over.
