The commander welcomed his guests in the ship's library, each visitor being introduced by Mr F. Sanderson (of Messrs L. D. Nathan and Co.) or Mr introduced by Mr F. Sanderson (of Messrs L. D. Nathan and Co.) or Mr S. A. Longuet (of Messrs A. S. Paterson and Co.). When the guests had all arrived the party went to luncheon in the leantiful dining sation of the ship, the tables being charmingly decorated with flowers and little flags of the company by Miss A. Waters, under the direction of Mrs D. McGregor. At lunchein the only toast was that of "The King." which was proposed by Commander David and honoured enthusiastically by the guests. to the comfortable smoking from, where, with an accompaniment of fragrant eigars and coffee, several happy speeches appropriate to the occasion were made. Mr. T. Finlayson (Sargood, Son and Ewent, proposing "Auckland, its Shipping and Mining Industries," said that while they realised that despite the drawback Auckland had suffered in the Maori war and the withdrawal of the seat of Government, it had grown from a small settlement in the wilderness to a large and important city of increasing size; they had failed to realise adequately that they had two good harbours—one at its front door, unsurnassed in the world, and another at its back ed in the world, and another at its back door which could be made an important waterway. He would like to see constructed canals from the Manukan constructed eanals from the Manukau to both the Waikato and the Waitemata, and he did not think it an impossibility to achieve. The matter was engaging the attention of certain citizens, and in the near future he hoped that either the Government or the Harbour Board, or private capitalists, would take up the scheme. He was glad to see that the Harbour Board had at last embarked on a scheme which, when completed, on a scheme which, when completed, would make Auckland harbour a credit would make Anckland barbour a credit to its owners. He thought a great deat of praise was due to such companies as the Shaw. Savilt and Albion for their energy and conrage in risking their large capital in the colony, and he attributed much of the prosperity to their efforts along with the development in the freezing trade, with which they had so much to do. (Applause.)

Mr McCaffun replied for the Chamber of Commerce, and he congratulated the company on the possession of such a fine ship, and he considered that while the three companies concerned in the direct trade kept the fixed tariff they had agreed upon as low as was just and reasonable the colony need not complain, and this was much preferable to the uncertainty of the battle of freights. He urged the necessity for independent action by the community to develon its tion by the community to develop its industries abroad instead of waiting to be spoon-fed by the Government, (Ap-

My Rhodes (Waibi Mining Co.) replied for the mining industry, the importance of which he emphasised by reference to the Waibi and Waiotabi mines.

Mr Houghton, proposing the toast of "The Auckland Harbour Board," said the scheme of works it had entered upon would place Auckland in the forefront of Australasian ports.

Mr Philson, in his reply for the Board, said that the different steamship agents and commanders did not lay their wants clearly before the Board. He referred to the safety of the port at all times, and said that with one more light in the channel vessels as big as, or bigger than, the Corinthic would be able to enter at night with case.

Commander David reptied for the company, and said that as a commander he would like to see another light inside Cuvier Island or at Channel Rock. He hoped this was but the first of many visits of the Corinthic to the poet.

The toast of "The Press," eloquently and humorously proposed by Mr II, C. Tewsbey, concluded a very pleasant function.

AUCKLAND'S BEAUTIFUL PUB-LIC DOMAIN.

Our double-page this week is devoted Our double-page this week is devoted to a collection of pictures of the very leantiful public Domain of Anckland. A judicious "weeding out" of it trees and overgrown shrubs has lately taken place, and those who have not lately taken a drive or walk through this fine park will be well repuid for making a visit thereto. The large panorama in the centre is reproduced from a photocaken last year when there was an enormous attendance to hear the flurals for the North Island Brass Band Coutest. The picture then published soid test. The picture then published sold out, and in answer to many hundreds out, and in answer to many hundreds of applications for further copies, it is now reproduced with a number of pho-tographs specially taken for this issue by the "Graphic's" own photographer.
