WANGANUI.

Davin Boo

January 5.

Nearly all Wanganui seems to be away holiday-making. There is therefore a great dearth of social news. Several small private pienies were given last week, and a number of people were camping out for Christmas at the Kai Iwi Beach, but the weather has been anything but favoumble,

Amongst some smart tollettes worn recently I noticed: Mrs Banks, in a heartiful silk mustin with a floral design of pink and pale yellow roses on it, and festooms of deep cream silk lace on the skirt and corsage, dull green shaded straw toque with a large bird at the side; Mrs Williams, in a pastel blue canvas gown with wide swathed helt of a deeper shade of silk, full bodthe with yoke of champague lace, gauged ellow sleeves with a fall of champague lace to the wrist, prefty cream straw toque with wreath of tiny heliotrope flowers in it.

HUIA.

WELLINGTON.

Dear Res

January 6.

The most interesting thing I have to tell you this week is the wedding of Miss Millie Stuart and Lieutenant Hancock, which was celebrated in Colombo. Of course, it is a month ago now, but accounts of the ceremony only arrived by the last mail. It was so nice for Miss Stuart having her mother and two sisters with her, the two girls, of course, being bridesmaids. The wedding took place from the house of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, the latter being a great friend of Miss Stuart's. The navy was present in good force, and altogether it seems to have been the cheeriest and gayest wedding imaginable. Mrs. and and Miss O. Stuart are now on their way back to New Zealand, but Miss Nora Stuart has gone on to England, where she will spend about a year before returning home.

Wellington is still waring a holiday air, though people are beginning to find their way back. A good many country people have been here shopping at the sales, which have begun unusually early.

Several people from Wellington have gone the Sounds excursion, which seems to grow more popular every year.

Last Friday a good many people went to Mrs. Grace's to say good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grace, who have gone back to South Africa, after a sojourn of several mouths here. Mrs. Grace were black crepe de chine, with a vest and cuffs of delicate face; Miss Grace had a pretty ivory voile, with a deep Empire belt; Mrs. Walter Grace was in tinted ninon de soie, with ruffles of lace. Among the guests were: Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. and Miss Johnston, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Tweed, Miss Fell, and several others. Miss Grace's, marriage to Mr. Dalziell is to be celebrated before Easter, after which they, and Mrs. Grace are going to England.

On Friday Mrs. Edwin gave a small but pleasant tea in honour of her nephew and nices. Captain and Mrs. Gisborne, who had arrived the preceding week from England. Mrs. Edwin wore black voile over glace, with quillings of satin. Miss Edwin was in white silk, with black line insertion; and her sisters were in pretty muslin dresses, with chine sashes; Mrs. Gistorne wore a very smart gown of hyacinth blue taffetos, with narraw kithings of silk; the yoke was of his's lare, with also formed ruffles to the claborate ellow steves, satin staw hat with plumes of shaded blue; Miss Harding was in pite green voile, and a black hat; and her sister had a pretty floral muslin; Miss. H. Harding wore black tailor-made, and a black per had a pretty floral muslin; Mrs. Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black crepe de chine, with a Plack and white bonnet; Miss Johnsten was in black or per descriptions.

ford, white c'oth, and rose pink toque; Mrs. Travers, white cloth, and shaded muuve hat; Misses Cu'erkige pretty muslin dresses; Mrs. A. Duncan, grey coat and skirt, and smart hat.

On Wednesday Miss Morrab gave a small garden party. The day was lovely, and the spacious garden looked its best. A good deal of croquet was played during the afternoon. Miss Morrab wore a dress of hiscuit linen, and a becoming lace hat; Mrs. Morrab, black crepe de chine; Miss — Morrab, figured voild dress. Among the guests were: Mrs. Plunkett Cole (Australia), wearing blue and white spetted voile, and a smart hat; and Miss Cole, who wore white muslin and Valenciennes lace; Missed Seed, Dransfield, Von Dadelzen, Quick, Butts, Harding, Simpson, Edwin.
