

NAPIER RAILWAY LIBRARY SOCIAL COMMITTEE, 1907.

BACK ROW: D. McGowan, A. Ferguson, C. R. Bowman, A. Morton, J. Stone, H. Hornung, G. Thomson, C. Williams, MIDDLE ROW: J. Finlay, A. D. Peterson (Secretary), A. W. L. McGee (Secretary), W. B. Thomas, (Chairman), F. Thomas (Secretary), J. Ireland, C. Bennett. FRONT ROW: B. Weaver, J. P. Trayer, A. McDonald, J. Sullivan, S. S. Viles.

AUCKLAND POSTAL OFFICIALS.

The Money Order and Savings Bank Department. Mr. T. Aitken, the accountant, is seated third in the front row, and Mr. P. G. Hinwood, the first clerk, is sitting second.

A SAILORSEVE VIEW.

This strange looking picture, in which everything has such a "spare-shed" look, is a photograph of the loading of the coastal schooner Greyhound, taken from the foreground of the cross-streets of the loftily spired baroque wharf, Auckland.

Heroic Doctor.

A story of marvellous heroism and self-sacrifice has just been reported from India by Sir Francis Younghusband.

The hero—a German physician, Dr. Albert von Leoq—is to be presented by the Prince of Wales and the Chapter-General of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England with a medal specially struck in gold for lifesaving on land.

Captain J. D. Shener, of the Royal Garrison Artillery, was travelling in Chinese Turkistan and met Dr. von Leoq at Kashgar. They agreed to travel back to India together.

Captain Shener was taken ill with enteric fever and pneumonia. Dr. von Leoq set out for assistance and had to travel for nine consecutive days, crossing the dreaded Sasser and Murgul Passes.

During that time he lived on flour balls rolled by his servant, and then dipped in melted ghee. He had left meat and other stores behind him, with complete disregard of himself, fearing that Captain Shener would run short.

Dr. von Leoq, who himself was in poor health, crossed the Sasser and Murgul Passes three times in fourteen days, the third time in a blinding snow-storm. The Sasser Pass is nearly eighteen thousand feet high, and the summit consists of some three miles of perpetual glacier.

Bartlett, photo.

MISS JANE AMODEO,

Who passed Senior Honours, Trinity College, pupil of the Sisters of Mercy, St. Mary's Convent, Ponsonby.

Ellerbeck, photo.

MISS DOROTHY WHITE,

Who passed Senior Honours, Trinity College, pupil of the Sisters of Mercy, St. Mary's Convent, Ponsonby.

TWO SUCCESSFUL AUCKLAND MUSICIANS.