Modern Woman.

HOW A MAN WOULD MANACH HER.

(By Our Lady Correspondent.)

LONDON, November & A brave man has rushed into print to tell his fellows how to manage modern woman. He has devoted a hundred and twenty pages to the subject.

No fears of the dire consequences that will ensue if the waiting masculine world rushes into experimenting on the lines Mr. Walter Calichan advises are likely to assail the breast of the woman reader, and she must be forgiven if she thinks that the problem is not yet sulved.

The probabilities are that it never will be-if it were the charme of wooing the uncertain feminine would be naterially diminished, and no same being wants to hurry that dark day forward. There are few enough dreams and illusions in life, so in all conscience don't let us make experiments on love. It is a question that can concern though the world at large is always anxious to haggle over this point, only two people, and every two have different rules for themselves, and probably will be wise enough not to own up to even those !

PHILOSOPHY OF LOVE.

At random I have marked in the book some titbits of Mr. Callichan's phioso-phy on woman and love:---"The reason why some of us are so unhappy in marriage is because we do Unappy in marriage is because we do not regard love as a fine art.⁹ "Everything in our time is more costly in the long ran, including wives, than in the early Victorian period." "It is always well for a man to re-member of what plastic stuff he is made.

member of what preste still he is made. The sine delikate fingers of the woman for whom he possesses an infatuation can mould him into a shape that he may not be able to recognise as his own "W. S. Gilbert is quite right:

"Every Jack must study the knack, If he wants to make sure of his Jill." "

"Nietzsche writes: Woman must preserved, cared for, protected and in-dulged like some delicate, strangely wild and often pleasant domestic animal." "Woman's strength is largely her weakness."

"Workness." "Wonen are quite as irascible as men when suffering from bunger. Therefore, 'Pred the daringt'" "Wonen are normally softer, more commisserative and sympathetic than but under stress they are more ขามคราก cruel."

"What living one's own life means what hving one's own life means precisely. I have merer discovered. No man can live his own life if he is poor or murried. No woman can live her own life if she wishes to set men an example of unselfichness."

of inseductness." "To 'give in' gracefully and with dig-nity is not an easy art in any form of partnership. It is, however, a most necessary accomplishment."

necessary accomplishment." "I can point to many men and women who are pure in body, but I have met very few who are pure in thought." "Everyone should fall in love at least ence in his or her lifelime, for those who have not known love are, in the moral, emetional and intellectual experi-ences, lamentably incomplete." One of the most aggravating attitudes in a man, and, by the same token, one of his most lovable weaknesses, is his constant hugging to his heart the fact that, though all other men in the uni-verse are blind, he sees all the ins and verse are blind, he sees all the ins and outs of a woman's character and "thor-ourhly understands her."

When he really does, the interest of one sex for the other will experience a big drop in the social market. But at by drop in the social market. But at present so feolish a consummation is not likely to come to pass. A woman does not understand herself — probably she wouldn't if she could: therefore, the task musy be undertaken by a man for a long age before it comes to much so-called profil

SCIENCE OF LOVE.

To turm to the wisdom set forth in this hatest estalogue of "How to Manage Firs," we find what would serve for good motto: "There is a good deal of luck in love; but there is much need of What science !

It as scener The suthor contradicts himself imme-distely with. "If she scenes to lift you into the seventh heaves, she will rules you by a sweet exercise of her intuition and gentleness. A woman can be more like an angel than a man. She can also prove more like a fiend." The fact that she is not necessarily an

The fact that she is not necessarily an sngel or a fixend, but sometimes one and sometimes the other, and, oftenest, both, requires something more than science to cope with it, and defies all the science ever weaved round it.

cope with it, and defies all the science ever waved round it. Luck in love must be a point granted, though it sounds a somewhat foolish proposition; but them any definition of love is likely to be opposed by somebody. On one point the writer appears to make comewhat of a complaint. "I have often heard," he says, "a com-parison of men with children uttered by the modern woman"; then he pats him-self on the back with the conforting re-flection that "men retain the freshness, keenness, and simplicity of childbood longer than women. They have more hobbies than women; they play oftener and more naturally, and they are less concerned to appear on their dignity." If the "simplicity of childbood" is a rather condemning phrase the rest will be granted, and his remark that "you do not insult a man by calling him a "great boy" should rather be changed into "you often mean to sincerely flatter a man when mean to sincerely flatter a man when you call him 'a great boy.'"

"A BIG CHILD."

The subject should have been left there, however, because the sentence "yet if a man goes fishing of plays games, wo-mea will smile pityingly and call him 'a big child,'" spolis the effect of the first arg. If nment completely. f Mrs. Gallichan doesn't like losing If Mrs. Galichan coess' are rosing Mr. Gillichan's company when he "goes fishing or playing games," he should be a sensible man and thank his lucky stars that she wants his company hadly enough that she wants his company baily below a to be spitcful about having to do without it. History tells that there are wives who don't care if their bushands play golf from morning to night and bridge from night to morning.

A priceless tit-bit of advice is this: "The best way to manage a nagging woman is to agree with her that you are a perfect brute and wretch; and then, to laugh at her. If that fails, fly from her presence." The last should have here all in capital letters. It is argument that kills love, and the undignified scenes that must cusue.

"He who runs away" in matrimony at the critical moment is the brave man. The chances are that, later on, his wife will apologise to him, and an apology is a thing that a woman dreads more than the Evil One-therefore value it when it's given.

WOMAN THE TYRANT.

WOMAN THE TYRANT. What every woman knows, according to the author, may be news to some, and that is, "that even in love man is not the chief partner in the game; he is swept along by a mighty physical and p-wchie force, and becomes the prey of the woman." And, further on, "the power thus entrusted to her by nature is very, often u-ed tyrannically." "Who have the woman in them without heing womanised are the pick of men," was said years ago by a classic, and wise-ly and well, though not with the same powerful triteness Mr. Gallichan empha-sizes the really huraan and charming sises the really human and charming man and woman and their capacity for true comradeshin.

THE FEMININE SOUL.

"The man who understands woman best and fears her the least." he says, "The man who understands woman lest and fears her the least." he says, "possesses a strong trace of the feminine soulated, or feminine in an abnormal sense: he may be quite normally a man in body and mind. But he has in his brain that quality of understanding and sympathy which is more feminine than whas dime. In like manner, the women who are happiest in their comprehension of men, either in wedlock or in friend. of men, either in wedlock or in friend-ship, have an element of masculinity in their minds and bosoms."

Initia minds and besome. Putting on one side the likelihood that any book with so frank a fitle and object is likely to call forth some aminements from the sex to be so excellently "managed" as per Mr. Gallichan, this little book is full of gems, and if so brights, and wise a writer-for it is mise foolish. and wise a writer-for it is wise foolish-ness that makes of love a science-can help non along the differit path that leads to understanding the not under-standable feminise, then both man and woman must ery "Bravel"

A Fearful Document.

The odd American custom of printing The odd American custom of printing on the hollot-paper not only the anness of the political parties which the enabl-dates represent, but the pictorial "em-blems" of those parties, resulted in the New York voters being confronted inst month with a wonderful and jearful document. In addition to the tradi-tional Resulting and the tradidocument. In addition to the tradi-tional Republican and Democratic sym-bols of an eagle and a star respectively, there were figures of a cottage, the Statue of Liberty, the Liberty Bell, a safe, a keysione, an arm with a ham-mer, a cock, a white square in a black border, a pair of scales, a torch, a "sub-way" train, a balkon, a gas meter, a "mannion house," and a few other mis-cellancous objects. There were in all, no less than twenty-one colours of candi-dates' names, each column standing under some such party emblem. As acces vana weary-one colours of candi-dates' names, each column standing under some such party emblem. As these columns were printed abreast, the ballot-paper was four ject five inches in width width.

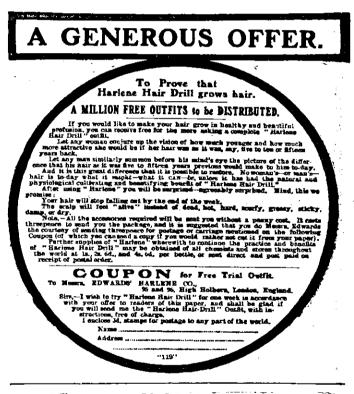

THE REASON FOR ECONOMY.

"It's all very well for yon to preach economy," said his wife, "but I notice whenever I cut down expenses that you emoke better cigars and spend more money for your own pleasure than at any other time." "Well, confound it; "hat do wan spinnea I want you to what do you suppose I want you to economise for, anyway?"

Eating richer food and eating freely than mund is the cause of many prophe being out of same to day. Head-ache, posted tongue, "wind," bas breath, ache, costed tongwe, "wind," bal breath, vomiling, dizzinew, jauzdice, and pains near the left shoulder blade and across the stomach, always yield to a few dome of Bile Benes after the middar meal and open retiring. Bile Beans dispet these wretched graptimes; they rectom the virestry met brightness of renewed benkik. They differ from all ordinary pills and undicides in thest they are composed of analoshie extends from prots and herba, and can always be milied upon to cars.

"Four years ago I had to stop shearing, as I suffered so with rheumatism, caused by the damp sheep. As the liniments and medicines I tried did me no good, I thought seriously of going to the hospital but was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. From the first bottle I began to get better. I took seven bottles in all, and I now am free from pain, and can eat and sleep grandly. I feel like a new man." A. H. WATSON, Gawler, S. A.

This is one of very many letters testifying to the value of Ayer's Sarsaparills in cases of rhsumatism. Keep your blood pure by using

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

As now made, it contains no alcohol. There are many imitations that will do you no good. Get "AYER'S."

Ayer's Pills are Sugar-Coated. A Mild and Gentle Laxative Prepared by Dr. J. O. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U.S. A.