Roturning Travellers.

Quite a number of well-known people came back from England by the Ruahine, came back from England by the Ruahine, and some of them had travelled by the same ship on her voyage to England in February. Among these were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. N. A. Burnes and Miss Burnes. They had a delightful stay at Home and travelled about incessantly in order to snake the most of their trip, as they were rather tied to time. For fellow-passengers both ways they had Mr. and Mrs. Stowe and Miss Stowe, who would be have stayed long in England it the climate had not been so trying. Mr. Stowe at once took up his Parliamentary duties again, and was welcomed mentary duties again, and was welcomed back warmly. He is in the enviable position of being exempt from the Civil Service Act, so his retirement is in his own hands, and will probably not be for several years to come, although many of his contemporaries have been reluctantly obliged to give up work.

Miss Vera Fulton's return occasioned much interest, as since her departure from New Zealand last February her engagement has been announced. Miss Fulces from New Zealand last rebruary her engagement has been announced. Miss Fulton's stay out here will only be for a few months, as her fiance follows her early next year, and after their marriage they will go at once to their home in Factured. England.

A Dance on the Tongariro.

Dances on board ship are by no means uncommon now, but that on the Tongariro was unusually enjoyable. In addition to bunting and other nautical adornments, there were masses of arum lilies about, while the supper-table was de-corated with primroses and anemones. Captain Whyte-Parsons and his officers were most attentive to their guests, and in receiving they were assisted by Miss Skerrett. As the Tongariro was along-side the wharf there was no sea journey necessary, which was a relief to many em elkolur

Wellesley Club Ball.

The Wellesley Club ball was a brilliant success, and the members may rest assuccess, and the members may rest assured that in entertaining they stand second to none. This time they took the Sydney-street hall, instead of disorganising the club-house, so there was much less trouble. Hangings of primrose and palest blue decorated the interior of the hall, and a number of huge mirrors at one end gave the effect of space; and added to the gaicty of the acene by their reflections. one end gave the effect of space, and added to the gaicty of the scene by their reflections. Everywhere one saw flowers, masses of arum lilies, pots of azaleas and cinerarias, and other flowering shrubs were placed about; the whole ceiling being covered with a trellia-work of lycopolium. In the supper room was a delicately lovely scheme of Japanese plum and cherry blossom, and pulest mauve campanulas, the wases connected with ribbons of the same hues. The supper itself was a most elaborate one, and comprised everything delectable, while the waiting was admirable. waiting was admirable.

A Gay Scene.

There was a gay scene on Saturday night at the Sydney Street Hall. It was the occasion of the breaking up of Miss Beere's dancing classes, and all the children had assembled to join in a final frolic. So many were the pupils that space for onlookers was extremely scarce, and the limited number present comprised only those who were nearly related to the performers. All the little girls were white frocks with coloured ribbons were white trocks with coloured ribbons in their hair to denote to which class they belonged, and they danced with a delightful grace and abandon. The programme began with graceful exercises, led by Miss E. Garland, and afterwards acchucas, minutek, Russian, Viennese, Scottish, and other dances were gone through. Later on dancing became general, most of the boys of Miss Berr's College class taking nart as well as a few lage class taking part, as well as a few of the onlookers. Miss Beere wore a graceful Princesa dress of net and lace with deficate embroideries. Mrs. Beers was in black crepe de chine and not.

Engagoment.

A new engagement is of interest. Miss Alys Riddiford has not very long been back from England and abroad, where she and her sisters spent two or three years finishing their education. Her flancee is a nephew of the Hon. F. Arkwright, who was formerly a member of the Legislative Council, and owned "Overton," which is one of the show "Overton," which is one of the show places in the Rangitikei. Mr. and Mrs. Arkwright have been living in the Old Country for some years now, and "Over-ton" is occupied by their nephew.
