It has been found impossible to train the English colt The Deemster, who was a really good performer as a two-year-old, and the son of Arbitrator and Rookery has been sent to the stud

The Duke of Devonshire (better-known perhaps to turfites as the Marquis of Hartington) has secured first call on George Barrett's services for the English racing season of 1893, and Lord Dudley and Lord Rosslyn have secured second and third calls respectively. Bradford, the rising light-weight, will act as first horseman to Lords Randolph Churchill and Dunraven, and after them he will vide for the Kingslere stable them he will ride for the Kingsclere stable,
