GOOD TEA, like good music, is a delight to young and old. The chorus of praise for the quality of 'STANDARD' TEAS is the best evidence of their superior merit.

What we would like to impress upon tea drinkers is the fact that in the selection of our various Teas for blending purposes, the greatest care and the highest expert talent is given to secure uniformity of particular priced blends, freedom from impurities and bad flavour, a rich and full-bodied liquor, a delicate and refreshing aroma, and altogether the most agreeable, pleasant, and pure Tea that can be sold for the money.

We have had so many proofs of the favour our 'STANDARD' TEAS receive over other highly advertised blends, that it is scarcely necessary to dwell upon their distinguishing merit; but lest there should be some doubt with buyers over the various Nos., viz., from No. 1 to No. 8, we explain that we adopt the one brand, with design like below,

and that each number is perfectly distinct in character and kept uniform. Some of the conservative grocers insist on giving their customers what they think is the good enough Tea. They don't like wholesale blenders interfering with their supposed prerogative; but the best way to treat these is to be independent and insist on being supplied with
