

MISCELLANEOUS.

King Edward VII. was crowned at the second second of the second minute of the second hour of the second day, in the second week of the second month of the second half of the second year of the twentieth century. This interesting coincidence was discovered by Mr. A. M. Dunlop, Morestead Manor, near Winchester.

Not What They Wanted.—“Sir,” began the spokesman of a working-men’s deputation, “I have been asked to introduce this deputation. We want shorter hours—” “All right,” replied the employer; “we will begin at once—to-morrow the dinner-hour will be reduced to three-quarters!”

Gunner—“You don’t seem to have much faith in Dr. Lance as an appendicitis expert.” Guyer—“Faith? Why, I wouldn’t let him cut the appendix out of my dictionary.”

ON THE LINER.

“Hallo, old chap! Glad to see you eating something. It’s a good sign; keep it up!”

“I’m trying all I can do to keep it down!”

He: “Do you think your father would offer me personal violence if I were to ask him for you?”

She: “Hardly. But there’s no telling what he will do if you don’t say something pretty soon.”

Mrs. Rooney: “D’yer hear me darter Katie playing ‘Dolly Gray’ on the pianny?” Mrs. Kelly: “So it’s playin’ ‘Dolly Gray’ she is now? Shure, she’s played all the nayburs gray two month agone.”
