

WHERE IS HE?

Dr. Thomas P. Hunter, principal of the New York Normal School, maintained to train young women as teachers, evidently thinks, as did Henry Ward Beecher, that the average young woman looks upon teaching school as a temporary occupation while waiting to see what the Lord will send her. Dr. Hunter is fond of telling a story about two young women who met after a long separation.

"I am taking a course in the Normal college," said one of them; "I am going to teach school."

"Teach school!" exclaimed the other. "Why, I would rather marry a widower with seven children."

"Where's the widower?" was the prompt demand.

GETTING EVEN.

Mrs "Stonewall" Jackson, widow of the famous Confederate General, who now lives in Charlotte, N.C., was chaffing a lawyer of her acquaintance about the fees demanded by members of his profession.

"Still, there are occasions when a lawyer isn't the chief beneficiary of a suit," said Mrs Jackson. "I know of one instance. A friend of mine in Virginia sued a railway for damages and secured a verdict for £10,000, which was paid; and the whole amount is now in the bank subject to her order. Her counsel didn't get a penny of it."

"How was that?"

"She found the only way of outwitting him."

"What did she do?"

"She married the lawyer."

CRITICISM.

The teacher was giving the school a little lecture on good conduct. "Let me caution you on another point, children," she said. "Avoid criticising. Don't make a practice of finding fault with other people, or picking flaws in what they say or do. It is a very bad habit to form, and will make your own life unhappy." "Why, teacher," spoke up a little boy, "that's the way my father makes his livin'!" You surprise me, George. "What is your father's occupation?" "He's a proof reader, ma'am." The teacher coughed behind her fan. "Well, George," she said, "I will make an exception in the case of your father."

It is proven every day that the man who has the ability to make money does not always have the ability to hold it.

The courage of some consists in bravely viewing the misfortunes of others.
