THE UNVEILING OF THE CAPTAIN SCOTT MEMORIAL IN ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL. A tribute to the memory of the famous British explorer, who perished in the Antarctic on March 29, 1912, was paid by the Right Hon. H. H. Asquith (Prime Minister) when he recently unveiled the memorial to Captain Scott. Some of Capt. Scott's men are shown admiring the memorial of their gallant leader.

LAMP DAY IN LONDON.—As a change from Flag Days there was a large-hearted welcome for Lamp Day on the part of the London public recently, on the occasion of the anniversary of the birthday of Florence Nightingale. The proceeds of the sales were donated to the Women's Service Bureau Funds. The Florence Nightingale statue in Waterloo was adorned with evergreens, while Lady Cowdray, who can be seen sitting down, did a brisk business all day.
