

The Long Tramp to Berlin—Britishers Advance Stage by Stage Despite the Boasted Insuperable Barriers of the

Not a gold mine rush, but working parties composed of British Tommies, equipped with spades and picks in addition to their rifles, going up to consolidate newly captured trenches. Note the duck-boards which render marching over the sodden ground much easier.

OFFICIAL PHOTOGRAPH OF THE NOTABLE BRITISH ADVANCE ON THE A MANCHESTERS WHO INFLICTED HEAVY LOSSES ON THE BRITISH OFFICERS ENGAGED IN A LITTLE OPEN AIR COOKERY NEAR MIRAUMONT-LE-GRAND. A steel helmet does excellent service as a saucepan.

WHERE SPADES AND PICKS ARE AS USEFUL AS RIFLES.—British soldiers hand in pick and shovel work in the trenches and positions from which their co Huns.