

Miss Fayette Perry, the charming little artist who contributed much to the gaiety of "The White Chrysanthemum" at the King's Theatre, Melbourne, took part in an interesting test of a new life-saving apparatus by the Seattle Fire Brigade a few years ago. The local brigade had devised a new life net for catching people jumping from the window ledges of burning buildings. In order to demonstrate the suitability of the net the brigade asked if some citizen was daring enough to try a jump from a fourth-storey window. As an incentive to the timorous, a local newspaper offered 100 dollars to the first who offered, and Miss Perry won the money. She says that it was a perfectly delightful sensation flying through the air, but she would not care to attempt it again.

WARREN'S GREAT SALE.

Our lady readers will be interested to know that an unprecedented sale of sample blouses, costumes, coats, etc., commences on Wednesday, June 27, at Warren's, ground floor, Strand Arcade. This branch of Mr. Warren's establishment is opposite the lift, the display being made on the ground floor for the facility of customers. As an example of the bargains to be secured, five-guinea costumes are being offered at 45s., 21s. blouses reduced to 10s., ladies' tweed coats from 11s. and other lines at correspondingly reduced rates and superior quality.
