

It is stated that a number of German prisoners employed in England in planting potatoes in one of the principal market gardening centres were found to be carefully removing the eyes from the tubers to make sure no crop shall be gathered! Potato planting evidently is too gentlemanly an occupation for these Huns, who should be given an occupation more in keeping with their "Kultur," preferably breaking stones. Pig-farming would be far too risky an experiment, as were they given a free hand in this direction their already heavy casualty lists might possibly be still further augmented.

A FLYING VISIT

to your friend far out from the township can best be undertaken with an A.C. Light Car—for many reasons. It can be relied upon to make the journey there and back successfully, no matter what the state of the roads or how formidable the hills. By which we mean not only safely, but at a speed which many a higher-powered car would fail to show. The A.C. is efficient, comfortable, simple and economical—the lady driver's ideal.

Government work precludes us from supplying cars at present. May we book your order for post-war delivery?
