

JOHN SUTTON is inquired for by his brother through the Hawera Police. He is a native of Nelson, N.Z., a farmer or butcher, fifty years of age, about 5ft. 7in. high, strong build, dark features and hair, used to wear a full beard, probably now grey, top of right thumb off. Eldest son of Thomas Sutton, Waikakaho, Marlborough. Last heard of in 1882, at Napier, where he married a widow with two children, and is thought to be still in that locality.

REGINALD THEODORE WILLIAMS is inquired for by Charles M. Phillips, care of E. A. Worthy, Christ's College, Christchurch. Description: English, about thirty years of age, rather below the average height, aquiline nose, blue eyes, gruff voice; supposed single. He came out to Christchurch about 1884, and was for some time on Mr. Delamain's farm. Afterwards went to Wellington, from where he wrote to his friends in England, and gave his address as "Post-office." His last letter was from Napier, in October, 1890, still giving the same (Wellington) address. The trustees of an estate in which he is interested are anxious to discover and communicate with him, and Mr. Phillips offers a reward of £5 to any member of the Force who will ascertain the necessary particulars.

HENRY CUST HANKINSON is inquired for by his uncle, Robert C. Taylor, C.E., Christchurch. Description: Born in New Zealand, a clerk, nineteen years of age, 5ft. 7in. or 8in. high, black hair, dark complexion and eyes, may have small moustache, good-looking, 10 to 11 stone weight, gentlemanly, plays the piano, and fond of music. May take up with some theatrical company. Was employed by Ornant and Davidson, solicitors, Hobart, who have been communicated with, but can give no information. In his last letter, dated Hobart, 24th January, 1892, he said he was leaving for the New South Wales goldfields, and gave his address as "Care of Commercial Banking Company, Pitt Street, Sydney." Photograph at Inspector's office, Christchurch.

ABRAHAM LIVINGSTONE is inquired for by his daughter, Mrs. R. C. Barnes, Truro, Colchester Co., Nova Scotia. Left his home about forty years ago, and would be now, if living, about eighty years of age. When last heard of he wrote to say he was working on a goldfield, not known where. Mrs. Barnes was informed by a young man, who was in Melbourne eighteen months ago, that he saw a man giving his name as Livingstone, and as eighty years of age, in one of the shipping-yards in Melbourne. Supposed to be living in Greymouth, New Zealand, where he is known to a man named Thomas Brown, employed on the harbour dredge at Greymouth.—O. 9131, 24th October, 1892.
