NEW ZEALAND POLICE GAZETTE

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY

WELLINGTON, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1945

PERSONS WANTED

AUCKLAND.—29th ultimo, for false pretences, Gordon Leslie Johansen, referred to in Police Gazette, 1945, page 315, and Photographs, 1944, page 68; wearing a navy-blue velour overcoat. On above date he obtained £90 in money from Thomas Albert Collins, 42 Cook Street, by falsely representing that a launch then on a slipway near the Western Viaduct was his property. Complainant answered an advertisement regarding a launch for sale and subsequently met Johansen at the Western Viaduct and paid him £90 for a launch and obtained a receipt which was signed "Johnsen." Complainant later learned that the launch was not Johansen's property. No warrant.

Arrested, 7/11/45

He had been touring the Waikato district with complainant, and on above date went to her room in the Palace Hotel and told her that the maid wanted to see her. Complainant left the room to find the maid, leaving her purse containing £100 on the bed. The following morning Sims called at complainant's room and told her that he was leaving for Hamilton but would return. Shortly after she discovered that £40 was missing from her purse. No warrant.

Interv'd, 16/11/46

HUNTLY.—8th instant, on warrant of commitment to Auckland Prison for twenty-one days in default of paying £10 fine for theft, James Smith, referred to in Police Gazette, 1945, page 445. He is also to be served with a notice of a prohibition order.

WELLINGTON.—12th instant, that he be arrested and returned to the nearest Borstal Institution, Allen Joseph Davies, referred to in Police Gazette, 1944, page 698. He has failed to report to a Probation Officer, and has been recalled to a Borstal Institution, but he is not to be arrested if located after 13th September, 1946. (P. 45/1261.)

no action desired, 7/11/45.

† Completed examinations qualifying for rank of Sub-Inspector.

‡ Completed examinations qualifying for rank of Sergeant.

The papers on "Evidence" and "Prescribed Statutes" were set and examined by Dr. N. A. Foden, Crown Solicitor; those on "Police Force Act and Regulations" and "Police and Detective Duties" by a Board consisting of Dr. N. A. Foden, Superintendent H. Scott, and Inspector S. G. Hall; and the papers on the literary subjects by Mr. R. Darroch, formerly headmaster of the Terrace School, Wellington.

The following remarks of the examiners are published for the information of candidates:—

Evidence.—An excellent result was shown in the case of the Sub-Inspector's paper, although no candidate displayed outstanding merit. The Senior Sergeants' results were not so good as last year, and those candidates who proceed to the next examination will need to see that steady work is maintained in the subject during the year if they expect to qualify. In the Sergeants' paper it was evident that many candidates had not devoted adequate time and concentration to study. Systematic work throughout the year is indispensable to success.

Prescribed Statutes.—The results in the Sub-Inspectors' paper were satisfactory enough, but some candidates were inadequately prepared for the examination. In the case of the Senior Sergeants and Sergeants, the results were disappointing. Candidates should confine answers to relevant matter. If the answer be known, there is no occasion to introduce extraneous matter into it. To every question there is a specific answer. A little time should be devoted before commencing the question to ascertaining clearly the precise scope of the desired answer. More attention should be given to methods of study. In a number of cases the answers suggested that sporadic reading was the method followed.

Police Force Act and Regulations.—The result of the Sub-Inspectors' paper was much the same as the previous year and can be regarded as satisfactory, calling for no special comment. Good work was done by the candidates for the Senior Sergeants' paper, and this too, calls for no particular remarks. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said in the case of the Sergeants' paper. Here it was obvious that a number of candidates had not embarked on a course of systematic study during the whole year, but had relied on "cramming" over a short period. The whole syllabus must be known, and organized work, with constant revision, is the only successful method. One candidate obtained 54 marks for nine questions, the tenth question having been omitted; had the ground been fully covered in the course of his study, this candidate would most likely have passed.

Police and Detective Duties.—In the Sub-Inspectors' paper several candidates showed a lack of knowledge of points of detail involved in the handling of practical problems. Every item of detail in conducting any investigation is of significance, for failure to achieve the desired result will usually follow from the omission to take one or other factor into consideration. The Senior Sergeants' paper was very disappointing, and indicated a lack of appreciation of the value of a logical and concise approach to the subject. The steps taken in any given cases should be arranged in proper sequence, and for the purpose of study should be embodied in notes and referred to by way of supplementing one's practical knowledge. Many of the answers in this paper contained irrelevant matter and omitted vital points. Several cases of candidates who omitted to answer certain questions occurred in the Sergeants' paper. To miss merely a single question is likely to prove fatal to the chance of success. Such omissions can only be ascribed to failure to devote the time and attention to the subject or to lack of experience. Even in a practical subject like "Duties," some book work is inevitable, or the compilation of notes for study can be resorted to. A feature worthy of note in the paper generally is that the successful candidates scored very good marks.

10. What are the provisions of the regulations regarding the use of influence by or on behalf of members of the Force?

POLICE AND DETECTIVE DUTIES

Time allowed: 3 Hours

1. As prosecutor in an important criminal case you arrange to have subpoenas issued and served on several witnesses. The constable detailed to serve the subpoenas informs you that one of the witnesses is evading service by locking himself in his house and refusing to come out. State what steps, if any, you would take with a view to securing the attendance of the witness.
2. It is reported to you that a shopkeeper in your district has distributed a large number of printed circulars inviting entries to a football competition, each entry to be accompanied by an entrance fee of 1/-. The conditions of the competition are that a prize of £20 will be paid to the person who correctly picks all the winning teams of thirteen Rugby football matches to be played on a given date. If more than one person is successful, the amount will be divided pro rata. State how you would investigate the matter, and if you consider offences have been committed, draft the appropriate charges. Mention any case you know on the subject.
3. You receive information that illicit distilling of spirits is carried on in your district. Describe step by step how you would proceed to deal with the matter from the time you received the information until the offender appeared before the Court.
4. A farmer complains to you that fifty sheep have been stolen off his farm. As a result of your investigations you have strong grounds for believing that they have been stolen by another farmer in the same district. The suspect, on being interviewed, denies knowing anything of the missing sheep, but on being requested to muster his sheep for inspection refuses to do so or to allow any one else to muster them. State what you would do.
5. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of an offender who is charged with breaking and entering a jeweller's shop and stealing jewellery valued at £500. You receive information that the offender's sister recently received a letter from him which had been posted at Liverpool, England. State what inquiries you would make, and if the information proved to be correct, the steps you would take with a view to securing the extradition of the offender. What instructions would you give the member of the Force detailed for the escort?
6. When visiting an hotel at 9 p.m. on a Saturday you find two men and two women in the lounge drinking. They all claim to be the guests of the wife of the licensee. The latter informs you that her husband is absent from the premises, that she is in charge, that the four persons are her guests, and that she supplied the drinks gratuitously. State what you would do, and discuss the legal position fully.
7. State how you would proceed to obtain and execute a search warrant under each of the following Acts: (a) the Crimes Act, 1908; (b) the Justices of the Peace Act, 1927; (c) the Licensing Act, 1908; (d) the Gaming Act, 1908. What are your powers and duties in each case?
8. A man goes into a licensed second-hand dealer's shop and offers a quantity of alluvial gold for sale. The matter is brought under your notice. What are the requirements of the law in the case, and what inquiries would you make with the view to ascertaining if any breach of the law had been committed?
9. An order has been made against a father for the maintenance of his two children. He cannot be located, but it is known that he owns a house in Wellington let to a tenant. What action can be taken to satisfy the maintenance order?
10. You receive reliable information that in a certain house occupied by a Chinaman, opium is being smoked. On entering you find (a) the occupier in possession of a small quantity of prepared opium suitable for the purpose of smoking; (b) another man is smoking opium; (c) another man has an opium-pipe in his possession, but the pipe is cold; and (d) another man is lying on a mattress on the floor asleep. What are your powers in respect of the four men, and what are the various charges you would bring against each?

LAW EXAMINATION (SENIOR-SERGEANTS)

EVIDENCE

Time allowed: 3 Hours

1. Define or explain the following terms: (a) judicial notice; (b) prima facie case; (c) right to begin (in criminal cases); (d) course of evidence; (e) anticipating evidence.
2. State what you know of the rules of evidence relating to declarations accompanying acts.
3. To what extent are the words and acts of a person admissible as evidence of his state of mind?
4. What is the law of evidence relating to complaints?
5. Write what you know of evidence of good character in criminal cases.
6. Evidence of certain matters is excluded on grounds of public policy. What are these matters?
7. State the "hearsay" rule of evidence. The rule is subject to three main classes of exceptions. Give these exceptions.

8. State the provisions of the Evidence Act, 1908; (a) as to proving that a witness has made a former contradictory statement; (b) as to cross-examination of a witness upon a previous written statement.
9. Set out the provisions of the Evidence Act, 1908, dealing with the giving of evidence by an accused person or by the husband or wife of an accused person in criminal cases.
10. What do you know of the following cases which concern some rule of evidence: Ah Chuck v. Needham; R. v. Palmer; R. v. Orpen; R. v. Gandy; R. v. Glen?

PRESCRIBED STATUTES

Time allowed: 3 Hours

1. Give statutory definitions of the following, citing the relevant statute in each case: false document; culpable homicide; defamatory libel; animal; motor-vehicle.
2. Write an account of "matters of justification or excuse" as dealt with in the Crimes Act.
3. State the provisions of the Gaming Act dealing with (a) race meetings; (b) art-unions.
4. Give the provisions of the Justices of the Peace Act, 1927, relating to (a) sureties of the peace; (b) trial by jury; (c) restitution of stolen property.
5. What is the statutory definition of "pawnbroker"? What are the statutory requirements as to the license, and under what circumstances can the same be cancelled?
6. Set out the provisions of the Licensing Act relating to the renewal, transfer, and removal of a publican's license.
7. (a) What duties are imposed upon a hotel licensee by the Coroners Act?
(b) The Coroners Amendment Act, 1930 (section 2), is headed: "Supreme Court may in certain cases order inquest." Give the contents of this section.
8. State the provisions of the Justices of the Peace Act relating to estreat of recognizances.
9. Define "public place" for the purposes of the Police Offences Act, 1927.
10. What do you know of these cases: Hughes v. Callaghan; Blackball v. Neary; R. v. Ford; Marks v. McCarthy; R. v. Keane.

POLICE FORCE ACT AND REGULATIONS

Time allowed: 3 Hours

1. State the provisions of the regulations regarding the washing of blankets and cleaning of lock-ups.
2. State the provisions of the regulations relating to the annual return of offences.
3. State the provisions of the Police Force Act relating to the determination of title to goods taken into possession by the police in cases where there is more than one claimant to the goods.
4. State the provisions of the Police Force Act dealing with Government property in possession of a member of the Force when he resigns or is dismissed.
5. (a) What instructions have been issued regarding conversations with witnesses in Court proceedings?
(b) What are the provisions of the regulations relating to prosecutions for perjury?
6. (a) State the provisions of the regulations relating to seamen belonging to ships in port who are arrested.
(b) What instructions have been issued regarding the service of summonses on board warships?
7. State fully the provisions of the regulations relating to "secret" and "confidential" correspondence.
8. What instructions have been laid down as to the conveyance of mental patients to mental hospitals?
9. What are the provisions of the regulations as to (a) police paddocks; and (b) the keeping of live-stock at stations?
10. State the provisions of the regulations dealing with requisitions for supplies.

POLICE AND DETECTIVE DUTIES

Time allowed: 3 Hours

1. It is reported to you that a woman had been raped by an unknown man two hours previously. State how you would proceed to investigate the matter and what evidence you would endeavour to obtain.
2. You are informed that a shopkeeper has been selling indecent documents in his shop. State what steps you would take from the time you received the complaint until the accused appears in Court. What would you have to prove to sustain a charge? Draft the appropriate charge.
3. While on duty at a race meeting on a street near the entrance to the racecourse a man known to you to be prohibited from entering a racecourse is seen giving money to persons about to enter, and later in the day he is seen receiving money. You obtain evidence that the money he gave was for betting and what he received was dividends. He remained on the street near the entrance throughout the day. State what you would do in the matter and the charges (if any) you would bring.

4. You are in possession of evidence that liquor is being sold in certain unlicensed premises and you decide to search the premises. In the course of the search you find liquor in bottles and kegs. You also find a large number of empty bottles, jars, and glasses which all appear to have recently contained liquor. You also discover documents relating to the purchase of quantities of liquor, besides cork-screws, bottle-openers, and cash which you believe to be the proceeds of the sale of liquor. State what you would do and under what authority you would act.
5. A complaint is received from the Post and Telegraph Department that a telegraph pole has been broken apparently by being struck by a motor-vehicle. Describe how you would proceed to investigate the matter. If you succeeded in locating the vehicle and obtaining sufficient evidence to warrant a prosecution against the driver, under what statutory provision would you proceed? What instructions have been issued in connection with such cases?
6. It is reported to you that in a near-by street a drunken man is doing something to a motor-car which appears to have been involved in a severe collision with a stationary object. On investigating you find the man, who is obviously intoxicated, trying to start the engine by means of the crank-handle, but he has not succeeded. State what you would do, what inquiries you would make, and what you would have to prove before the man could be convicted of being in charge of a motor-vehicle while in a state of intoxication. Quote authority.
7. In what circumstances can a Coroner's inquest be held touching the death of a person whose body cannot be produced? What procedure should be followed in such cases? What instructions have been issued in connection with (a) cases where the identity of the deceased is in doubt; (b) cases of suicide; (c) expenses incurred in connection with inquests?
8. A prisoner has been remanded in custody, and a warrant of commitment has been issued. For the purpose of further interviewing him, he is held at the local police-station overnight, whence he escapes. He is arrested three days later. What action would you direct in the matter?
9.  (2) Japan's Surrender.
 (3) New Zealand—the Fortunate Islands.
 (4) Parliament.
 (5) Winston Churchill.
 (6) Farming in New Zealand.
 (7) Good Manners.
2. (a) Rewrite the following in the indirect form—that is, in the third person:—
 "If we are marked to die, we are enow
 To do our country loss; and if to live,
 The fewer men, the greater share of honour.
 God's will! I pray thee, wish not one man more.
 By Jove, I am not covetous for gold
 But if it be a sin to covet honour,
 I am the most offending soul alive."
 (Enow means enough. The extract is from Shakespeare's account of King Henry the Fifth's speech before the Battle of Agincourt.)

- (b) Turn the following into direct speech—that is, into the first person :—

The old man asked the children where they lived and one of them said that they lived in a cottage in the forest. Then the old man asked how they amused themselves in the winter. One of the children replied that they had snow-fights and games of that sort, but another interrupted and said that they seldom went out unless it was absolutely necessary.

3. Punctuate the following passages :—

(a) it is funny said jack that the moon does not shine every night where is it

(b) she said to her brother i shall meet you to-morrow

(c) are you feeling better the doctor asked the nurse

(d) when you have finished bring your work to me said the teacher to the pupil

(e) look at those cruel giants over there cried don quixote giants said sancho i see no giants can you not see them with outstretched arms

4. Combine the following into one sentence :—

If I were asked to select one poem of Rossetti's to illustrate his early simple manner at its best I should certainly choose "The Portrait."

Here is nothing voluptuous or extravagant.

Stanza by stanza the sweet music goes its way,

and rises at the end into a tender and divine close.

5. Correct the following sentences :—

(a) Who were you talking to ?

(b) I hate those kind of clothes.

(c) Gold as well as silver are precious metals.

(d) One of the clerks only was late once in his life.

(e) He cannot write without he has a broad gold nib.

6. Make a précis of the following statement on the new security system :—

A few of the more general considerations which it seems likely that the architects of a security system must this time keep in mind may here be tentatively suggested.

Firstly, they will have to remember that military power is not a constant, but a variable factor ; it does not depend on the absolute number of ships and divisions and aircraft which make up its sum, but also on the circumstances, geographical and other, in which it may have to be used. They will have to recognize, therefore, in all likelihood that the problem of security is not one but many problems, and that different conditions, political, economic, or strategic, in different regions of the world make different arrangements necessary. Thus the system may turn into a composite pattern made up of many particular arrangements among the states most directly concerned in the security of particular regions, such as the Atlantic, or the Indian Ocean, or the Mediterranean Sea. But, if so, it will be essential that these regional arrangements should be interlocking arrangements, made within the ambit of, and according to principles accepted by, a wider association of states charged with the general supervision of world security as a single problem. The world cannot be neatly divided into closed geographical regions either for strategic or any other purposes, nor can the interests of all states be localized.

Secondly, it seems necessary to recognize that security plans cannot be improvised at the last moment when the danger to be guarded against has actually arisen ; they have to be thought out beforehand with reference to all the relevant political and strategic circumstances, and particularly to the source from which danger is most likely to come. In modern military conditions, as Professor Carr has pointed out, it is an illusion to suppose that states can wait until war breaks out and then take sides with whichever party is in the right ; if they are to be associated together in war and to make their military co-operation effective, they must tie up their fortunes together beforehand.

Inside the state everyone knows that the police recognize that some persons are more likely to commit crimes than others ; they know, too, that certain persons specialize in certain types of crime, and when a person has been through their hands once or more than once they keep him under observation. If they were obliged to act as though bishops were as likely to commit crimes as gangsters, their task would be made impossible, yet something very like that was implied in the Covenant Scheme. No future scheme will be effective unless it is based on a realistic recognition of contemporary facts, and the overwhelmingly important fact with which the world will be concerned after this war will be the possibility of a revival of German or Japanese aggression. That may not be an eternal fact, but it is the fact which most concerns this generation.

Lastly, though the obligations which states undertake will probably not be uniform, there seems to be a minimum obligation which every state may fairly be required to accept, and, having accepted, may be expected to honour. This would be a negative undertaking, a promise at least not to assist any state found under the agreed procedure to be an aggressor, and not to impede the action of other states taking more positive steps for enforcing the law. The details of such a minimum obligation would require careful consideration, but at least it would mean that every state would be bound to deny to an aggressor the rights that neutrals have traditionally been expected to accord to belligerents.
