

The Police Gazette is a CONFIDENTIAL publication, and is issued for the information of members of the Police Force, and Officers engaged in the administration of justice, ONLY.

NEW ZEALAND POLICE GAZETTE.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

WELLINGTON, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1915.

NOTICE.—For instructions as to the manner in which reports are required to be furnished for the compilation of the Police Gazette see Gazette No. 1 of this year.

The arrest of offenders described in the Police Gazette, or respecting whom crime reports have been forwarded for insertion in the Gazette, should be promptly notified by the members of the Force effecting the arrest.

When notifying the arrest of persons charged with theft or suspected of theft, it should be stated whether the property stolen, or any portion of it, has been recovered.

A description of property supposed to be stolen, found in the possession of offenders, for which owners cannot be found, shall be furnished for insertion in the Gazette.

All communications concerning this Gazette should be addressed to the Commissioner of Police, Wellington, and the envelope marked "For Gazette." Members of the Force in charge of out-stations will forward them direct.

POLICE EXAMINATIONS, 1915.

Police Department,
Wellington, 1st November, 1915.

The following list of members of the Force who passed the recent examination qualifying for promotion is published in accordance with Regulation No. 421.

The results of the examination, so far as the answers to questions on "Police Regulations" and "Police and Detective Duties" are concerned, were not as satisfactory as they should be. A few candidates showed a fair grasp of the subjects dealt with, but others exhibited a want of knowledge of police duties and discipline generally, and there is no gainsaying the fact that the candidates this year have not shown as high a standard of knowledge of their duties as those who passed the examinations in 1913 and 1914.

It may be that when the Police Regulations are revised Constables will not be eligible to sit for any examination except that qualifying for rank of Sergeant, and Sergeants will be eligible for the Senior Sergeants' Examination only, and intending candidates for future examinations should bear this in mind.

The remarks of the examiners in the law and literary subjects, as well as copies of all papers set at the examination, are published hereunder.

J. CULLEN,
Commissioner of Police.

Re Police Examinations, 1915.

Herewith please find results of examinations of candidates for promotion in the Police Force. A fairly high standard of work was required, but the questions, however, were all such that any candidate who had given intelligent application to his subjects would have no difficulty in obtaining a reasonably good pass. That this is so will be seen from the fact that some of the candidates have been able to get high marks in the various subjects. Speaking generally, the main weaknesses were shown in the knowledge of provisions of statutes, in the bulk of cases the replies being lacking in accuracy and certainty. The evidence papers were answered better.

For Sub-Inspector.—The evidence paper was well done by practically all the candidates; in two instances exceedingly well done. In the prescribed statutes the answers were not so good, the tendency being to generalise or to be inaccurate. One paper, however, was a good paper.

For Senior Sergeant.—The papers were generally fairly well done. The same remarks as to lack of accuracy in knowledge of the prescribed statutes applies.

For Sergeant.—The facts in this section were uneven in quality, some papers being exceedingly good and others being distinctly poor, the lower marked papers in some cases showing practically no knowledge of the subjects whatever, indicating sitting for the examination without sufficient study or preparation. Some of the higher ones, on the contrary, were so ably done as to suggest that not only were the subjects carefully prepared but that the candidates were of a high order of intelligence and distinctly capable of undertaking higher duties requiring knowledge and ability. The papers were set jointly, and in marking were carefully considered by both examiners.

V. MEREDITH,

Wellington, 13th October, 1915.

The Commissioner of Police.

I have the honour to make the following report on the literary portion of the police examinations for 1915:—

Whilst there was no candidate of outstanding brilliancy, a high standard of all-round excellence was shown by most of the candidates who did work which showed that they had pursued a course of steady, painstaking effort throughout the year.

The sums were, as a rule, set out neatly, methodically, and logically, and marks were awarded even when the answers were not correct. Clumsy and lengthy solutions when not correct were not awarded any marks. Many of the questions were handled with considerable intelligence and skill by the majority of the candidates, and only in a small percentage of cases were the arithmetical papers marked as inferior. One candidate in the Sergeants' Examination scored 100 per cent., whilst several others scored over 90 per cent.

Some very good essays were written, the matter was excellent in many cases, and many showed considerable knowledge in arranging their ideas into paragraphs in their proper order and relationship.

An omission occurred in the sentences for synthesis. It should have read, "He should be either attacked or summoned." This mistake was not allowed to prejudice the marks of any candidate.

Two of the candidates for the Sub-Inspectors' Examination showed expert knowledge in the precis-writing, and two of the papers were inferior.

Two papers in geography were excellent, whilst many were very satisfactory. Several betrayed the fact that very little attention or thought had been given to the subject.

I would strongly urge all the men of the Force who intend to sit for these examinations to give careful, regular, and systematic attention to the different subjects during a course of at least twelve months. In season and out of season I shall be pleased to give all possible assistance to intending candidates.

ROBERT DARROCH.

8. A is indicted for attempting to murder B on the 19th and 22nd February, and for the murder of B on the 22nd March by administering to him on each date arsenic in cocoa. Discuss the admissibility of the following evidence :—
 - (a.) A pocket-book containing (inter alia) the following memorandum in B's handwriting : " Thursday, 19th February. Saw A a few moments. Borrowed French Bible. Was very ill during the night."
 - (b.) A chemist's registry-book of poisons containing an entry in the handwriting of the chemist, since deceased : " February 21st. Miss A, 6d. worth of arsenic for garden and country house."
 - (c.) That A, after being told by a Police Inspector that she had better make a clean breast of it if she wished to escape the gallows, made a statement in which she said that she had given B cocoa from her window one night, and that she had bought arsenic on various occasions, and used it as a cosmetic.
 - (d.) That on the nights of the 19th and 22nd February and 22nd March B complained of pain in his stomach, thirst, feeling very cold, and of headache.
 - (e.) That B shortly before his death asked his landlady what the doctor thought. She replied, " He thinks you will get over it." B then said, " I am far worse than the doctor thinks. I cannot think why I have always been so unwell after getting that cocoa from A. She must have poisoned me." His landlady left him, and he was not seen alive again.
 - (f.) That in B's room after his death was found a letter from A undated, referring to " our meeting last night," in an envelope bearing the post-mark of the 23rd February.
 - (g.) That A had been engaged to B, had been unduly intimate with him, and had written him numerous incriminating letters ; that she had since become engaged to C, and had endeavoured in vain to get B to return her letters.
 - (h.) That other people poisoned by arsenic had exhibited symptoms similar to those of B.
 - (i.) The opinion of medical men that the symptoms exhibited by B were the symptoms produced by arsenic poisoning.
 - (j.) An account by a medical witness of his analysis of arsenic purchased from a chemist who sold arsenic to A, and of experiments made by him as to the effect of mixing arsenic with cocoa, and the effect of washing the face in water mixed with arsenic.

- (k.) That A had a bad character.
- (l.) That A told the clerk of the solicitor whom she had retained to defend her that she saw B on the night of the 22nd March, and gave him a cup of cocoa.
- (m.) That A had attempted to administer poison to previous lovers.
- (n.) That A confessed her guilt to a priest who had (unknown to her) been deprived of his office.
- (o.) That B, prior to his acquaintance with A, had suffered from despondency, and talked of committing suicide.

4. Write a précis, or an abstract, of the following in such a manner as to give, in a concise form, an account readily intelligible of the trial before the Court of Appeal:—

W. H. SMITH AND SON v. KYLE.

1. Facts respecting the Action.

Newspaper agents employed a young person at their newspaper stall at R. Station. His duties were to deliver newspapers each morning at M., a village having a railway-station two miles distant from R., and then to set up a stall at M. Railway-station, consisting of a board laid on trestles, and to sell newspapers there until 10.15 a.m., but during the remainder of his time he was employed at the newspaper stall at R. Railway-station, at which there was duly exhibited a notice required by section 4 of the Shop Hours Act, 1892, but no such notice was exhibited at the temporary stall.

2. Case stated by Justices in and for the County of Surrey.

At a Petty Sessions holden at the Town Hall, Reigate, in the said county, on the 13th April, 1901, an information preferred by Talbot Kyle (hereinafter called "the respondent"), against W. H. Smith and Son hereinafter called "the appellants"), charging that the appellants, on the 23rd March, 1901, at the parish of Merstham, in the said county, then being the employers of a certain young person, to wit, Albert Boorer, in a stall there did fail to keep exhibited therein the notice required by section 4 of the Shop Hours Act, 1892, and the Shop Hours Act, 1895, was heard and determined by us, and upon such hearing the appellants were duly convicted before us of the said offence, and we adjudged them to pay a fine of one shilling and costs.

3. Evidence at the Trial.

Upon the hearing of the said information the following facts were admitted or proved: On the 23rd March, 1901, last, Albert Boorer, who is under eighteen years of age, was in the employment for hire of the appellants, who are newspaper agents. From 6.30 a.m. to 10.15 a.m. he was employed by them at Merstham, and for the remainder of his time at Redhill Railway-station. Merstham is a village having a railway-station two miles from Redhill. Boorer's duties while at Merstham were first to deliver papers in the district, and then to set up a stall at the railway-station, and sell newspapers there. This stall consisted of a board laid on trestles. No such notice as is mentioned in section 4 of the Shop Hours Act, 1892, was exhibited at the stall at Merstham, but there was such a notice duly exhibited at the appellants' stall at Redhill Station.

4. Pleading of the Appellant's Counsel.

Boorer was not employed in and about a shop at Merstham, but at Redhill, where he had an opportunity of seeing the notice. The stall at Merstham was not a "shop" within the meaning of the Shop Hours Act, 1892, and that even if it was a shop, it was not a shop in and about which Boorer was employed.

5. Pleading of the Respondent's Counsel.

The stall at Merstham was a "shop" within the meaning of the last-mentioned Acts, and if an employer had two shops, even in the same town, he was required by the Acts to exhibit a notice at each of them. The stall at Merstham is none the less a shop because Boorer was not employed there for the whole of his time.

6. Decision of the Justices of the County of Surrey.

We were of opinion that the stall at Merstham constituted a shop within the meaning of the Shop Hours Act, 1892, and we accordingly convicted the appellants.

7. Award of the Lord Chief Justice (Lord Alverstone) on 7th November, 1901, at the High Court of Justice.

I am of opinion that this particular conviction cannot stand. I am not going to say anything that would lead to the supposition that for some purposes of the Act some structure such as this may not be a shop. For example, if a young person were employed by his employer for more than seventy-four hours in any one week at such a structure as the one now in question, then I think, in so far as it may be right to express any opinion upon the matter without having heard any argument on that point, that the structure would be a stall or shop within the meaning of the Act. I think for the purposes of this particular case the structure must be in some degree in the nature of a permanent structure. In this case the boy was really being employed at Redhill, going for some three or four hours to Merstham Station. During part of that time he was employed in delivering papers in the district, and then he set up this stall, which consisted of a board laid on two trestles, at the Merstham Railway-station and sold newspapers there. In my opinion it would be putting a ridiculous construction on the Act to hold that this board on trestles was a "stall," and therefore a "shop" in respect of which the employer would be bound to exhibit a notice under section 4. Further, it was not consistent with the facts to hold that the boy was employed at this stall at all. He was not really employed at the stall, but at the shop at Redhill. There being no mischief likely to be caused in the case, I think the conviction ought to be quashed.

8. Section 4 of the Shop Hours Act, 1892. (Referred to above.)

In every shop in which a young person is employed a notice shall be kept exhibited by the employer in a conspicuous place, referring to the provisions of the Act, and stating the number of hours in the week during which a young person may be lawfully employed in that shop.

DICTATION AND SPELLING.

Sometimes the Government may be a Mayor and Council, as in a city; sometimes a King, as in a kingdom, with his Council and Parliament; sometimes, as in a republic, a President, assisted by a Council and Parliament. In the Australian States and New Zealand the Government consists of the Governor, who represents the King; the Parliament; and the Cabinet, or Executive Council. But whatever form it may take a Government cannot do the work for which it has been set up unless it has a large fund of money.
