

POLICE AND DETECTIVE DUTIES.

Time allowed : Three hours.

1. If a warrant to apprehend signed by a Justice is directed to a constable by name and he is unable to execute it, what arrangement would you make for its execution? State on what authority you would act.
2. (a.) What conditions are required to make a dying declaration admissible in evidence at a trial?
(b.) In taking a dying declaration, in what form would you commence it?
(c.) If the witness does not apprehend that he is about to die, what course might be taken to secure his evidence?
3. When and within what limit of distance should a jury list be compiled? By what authority is it compiled?
4. Who are qualified to serve as jurors under the Juries Act? Who are disqualified as such jurors? Name as many classes as you can of persons who are exempted from serving on juries.
5. What steps would you take to seize liquor which you know has recently been delivered at unlicensed premises and which you suspect is kept for sale there? State your authority.
6. The Magistrate on conviction of the offender directs the police to restore a stolen bicycle to the owner on condition that he pays the second-hand dealer to whom it was sold the amount he gave for it. The owner refuses to do so and claims the bicycle. What course would you take to settle the question of possession of the bicycle?
7. How would you secure the evidence of an important witness discovered after accused has been committed for trial?
8. What are the provisions of the War Regulations respecting confidential communications? What is a "confidential communication" within the meaning of those regulations?

ENGLISH.

Time allowed : Three hours and a half.

1. Write an essay of from thirty to forty lines on one of the following:—

- (a.) The Liberty Loan.
- (b.) The War on the western front.
- (c.) The Great Silent Fleet.
- (d.) Necessity the mother of invention.
- (e.) Commerce.
- (f.) Dreams and ambitions of boyhood.

2. Combine into one well-arranged sentence:—

The indefatigableness of the country people is as well known.

The country people may be seen in activity all the day and all the year.

The country people are never idle.

They make a good distribution of their labours.

Their zeal is praiseworthy in turning to use every circumstance.

The circumstance presents itself.

Their zeal is praiseworthy in seizing upon every useful novelty.

The novelty offers.

3. Convert the following from the indirect to the direct speech:—

The Earl of Chatham, addressing the House of Lords, declared that he could not, and would not, join in congratulation on misfortune and disgrace. That moment was a perilous and tremendous one. It was not a time for adulation; the smoothness of flattery could not save them in that rugged and awful crisis. It was at that moment necessary to instruct the throne in the language of truth. They must, if possible, dispel the delusion and darkness which enveloped it, and display, in its full danger and genuine colours, the ruin which was brought to their doors.

4. In the following brief passage, insert the necessary capital letters, and punctuate it correctly:—

an intelligent boy says scrooge a remarkable boy do you know whether theyve sold the prize turkey that was hanging up there not the little prize turkey the big one what the one
