MR. F. M. B. FISHER'S VIEWS.

'Are you in favor of State aid to Catholic schools? A straight answer, yes or no,' asked an elector of Mr. Fisher last night. An emphatically uttered 'No' was Mr. Fisher's answer. Later on the question was put again, and again Mr. Fisher answered 'No.' 'Very well,' exclaimed the questioner.

PROHIBITION AND WINE FOR MASS

The Rev. P. Aubry, S.M., writes to us regarding what would seem—to judge by certain recent utterances reported in another column—to be by no means an imaginary danger.

'There is,' he says, speaking of the question of Prohibition, 'more than the right of using wine with moderation, there is the obligation of using it for religious purposes, and that obligation has been laid upon all Christians by Christ Himself in these words said at the Last Supper: "This do as a commemoration of Me." This usage of wine is observed by the Catholic clergy during the Mass, and the Mass is an essential part of Divine worship for Catholics. Whatever may be the theories of certain divines pretending to erudition and stating that the wine used in Judaea in the time of Christ was unfermented, the fact remains that, from time immemorial down to the present, fermented wine is used for Mass. An ounce of experience may dispense with tons of doubtful erudition on this point. Unfermented wine soon becomes sour and unfit for use. As Mass is celebrated frequently and everywhere, wine must be procured. Placing obstacles to the possession of wine is equivalent to interdicting the Mass or making its celebration very difficult. The law at present provides that wine can be obtained for religious purposes. How long will this guarantee last? The authors of this promise may withdraw it, if an excuse is found. Behold the consciences of the Catholic people at the mercy of a vote of Parliament or at the mercy of a majority who object to the Mass and regard it as an act of idolatry. Catholics who vote for Prohibition or regard it with favor, beware. Prohibition with regard to wine may lead to prohibition of the Mass at a future date. Religious persecution may come in through the Prohibition door.'

Good progress is being made by the contractors for the erection of the new Marist Brothers' School at Thorndon, which is to be ready for the New Year. An energetic committee of ladies is at present actively engaged in canvassing for the necessary funds to furnish the school, and the architect (Mr. J. S. Swan) is calling for tenders for the supply of the desks and fittings.

The St. Mary of the Angels choir, under their conductor (Mr. E. J. Healy) sang at the Town Hall last night (24th inst.) for the Orphans Club, who organised the concert for the hospital funds. The items rendered were the three test-pieces for the recent competitions, and it was with evident pleasure that they were heard by the large audience. At the conclusion of the 'Soldiers' Chorus' an encore was demanded, but owing to the length of the programme it could not be given. Mr. E. J. Healy deserves credit for the admirable control he exerts over the choir as evidenced in the numbers sung on the occasion.

The bazaar organised by the Catholics of Otaki, which has had a most successful run for upwards of a week, terminated last Monday evening, when the attendance was much larger than on any previous occasion, probably owing to the fact that a social interspersed with the announcement of several important raffles, was to take place. Much interest was evinced in the proceedings, as many of the articles raffled were valued at several pounds. The two principal articles—a valuable hall-stand and a handsome, large hand-painted mirror—were won by Messrs. Kane and P. Bevan respectively. Besides the raffles several guessing competitions were held. It is estimated that nearly £200 will be the profits from the bazaar.

Father Gondringer, S.M., of St. Patrick's College, preached an eloquent sermon on 'Education,' in which he explained the great work done by the Church in the cause of education from the earliest days, and enumerated the many great universities at present in Great Britain, Ireland, and Europe, and which were founded in the early ages, and which now stand as a monument of the activity of our Holy Mother the Church, ever with the words of the Divine Master echoing in her ears, 'Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not for such is the Kingdom of Heaven.'
