BY THEIR FRUITS YE SHALL KNOW THEM

FREDERICK JOSEPH KINSMAN, Protestant Bishop of Delaware, was led, by his special studies in history, and by the grace of God working in a sincere Christian, to overcome the prejudices of early training and to recognise and embrace the truth in the One, Holy, Catholic, and Apostolic Church, founded by Christ, its invisible head, and governed on earth by Christ's Vicar at Rome, its visible head. Conversion is usually a complicated process, especially in the case of a student who seeks light and conviction on many details that would, for a less learned person, be covered by some general principle. More than to anything else, Dr. Kinsman attributed his conversion to a letter from the Reverend Dr. Laird, who attacked the Catholic Church, particularly in South America, and concluded by quoting: "By their fruits ye shall know them." Dr. Laird was an old friend of Dr. Kinsman's, and it is surely a neat revenge that a letter written to discredit Rome drove into its fold one of the most esteemed and cultured of American Episcopalians. Of the letter, Dr. Kinsman says: "It led me to undertake a task which would not have been thought of without some such stimulating occasion. This was to learn all I could of the work and influence of the Roman
