

FIG. 1.—Surface temperature (°C) plotted as a function of position and time along the commercial coastal passage from Auckland northward through the Hauraki Gulf to North Cape, thence westwards to Sydney. Prominent geographical features are shown as abscissae and the months of the year as ordinates. Horizontal broken lines show the position of thermograph records used to construct this diagram (Garner, 1961).