Everyman's Hut

"We thank Thee, Lord, for weary days
When desert streams were dry,
And first we knew what depth of need
Thy love could satisfy.

"We thank Thee for the rest in Him
The weary only know—
The perfect wondrous sympathy
We needs must learn below.

"The touch that heals the broken heart
Is never felt above;
His angels know His blessedness
His way-worn saints His love."

When we come to consider seriously the relationship between God and the world, we are confronted with one great fundamental truth — a truth which runs right through the Bible, from Genesis to Revelation,—the wonderful truth that "where sin abounded, grace did much more abound."

In the Garden where grew the Tree of Knowledge of good and evil, which proved to be the downfall of man, there grew also the tree of life to give regeneration. As by one man's disobedience sin came into the world, and death by sin, so by the obedience of One came life and righteousness. At Calvary, where the wickedness of man reached its climax in its outrage against the Son of God, the grace of God abounded abundantly above it, as we hear Christ's plea from the cross for His executioner: "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." God's cry to men has even been "Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die?" "God willeth not the death of a sinner, but rather that he may turn from his wickedness and live."

And so we learn that though God abhors sin, yet His love and pity go out to the victims of sin, and all His dealings with us are designed to draw us to Him in love. He wounds that we may know the power of His healing touch. He allows pain and weariness to be our lot that we may know His wondrous sympathy and the calm of resting in Him. The three Hebrew youths would never have known the presence of the Son of God with them in the furnace in delivering power had they not been cast into the fire. The Samaritan woman at Sychar's well would never have known the joy of drinking the water of everlasting life had she not been an outcast and not able to visit the well with the other women. And if we were not sinners we would never know the joy of salvation through Christ. If we were not suffering from sin-sickness of soul we could not know that wondrous healing touch.

And the suffering and pain and agony that has come to the world is allowed only to turn men to Him for deliverance that they might know the calm of His peace. May all this suffering not be in vain, but may the outcome be a real turning to God and a desire to see His will done on earth, for in spite of all the evil that is rampant, "where sin abounds, grace does much more abound."

"I wish these flamin' guns had silencers on 'em — the rat-tat-tat makes me homesick!" Reminds me of lying in bed while the rent collector was givin' the door-knocker the works!"
