Camp Inspection

The O.C. is a splendid chap,
He believes in being tidy,
He inspects the tent lines twice a day,
Himself and his man Friday.

And it's just too bad for the personnel Who's tent is not just so,
There's no excuse, it serves them right
And on the mat they go.

They're up before the Commandant,
He let's them have their say,
And when they're done he rocks them,
Just fines them two days' pay.

His latest craze is private cars,
And many rules he's made,
You must line them up, backs to the drain,
Like soldiers on parade.

Now should you fail to park your car,
In the correct and proper manner,
The M.T.M. will remove the wheels
If they can find a spanner.

So now then, chaps, just look alive,
And keep the car park tidy,
Or otherwise you'll know the wrath,
Of the Commandant and Friday.

—J.P., Ngaruawahia Camp.

UNADDRESSED GIFT
PARCELS

Appreciated By Men In The Middle East

The appreciation of the men them selves at the receipt of the latest consignment of unaddressed gift parcels to reach the Middle East and also of the selection and packing of the contents in New Zealand is expressed in the troops' own newspaper, the "N.Z.E.F.
Times," of August 4.

"Last week quarter-master sergeants in various sections of the Second N.Z.E.F.—figuratively only—assumed long white beards and intense benignity of expression," the paper states, "and set about the distribution of the latest consignment of patriotic parcels received from New Zealand. It was a big occasion for the quarter-blokes, as well as for the men, and it would have inspired the well-wishers at home who packed those very welcome parcels could they have witnessed the keen anticipation with which their gifts were unpacked and the pleasure with which they were received.

"Once again the contents of the parcels showed a practical appreciation of the needs of the men. Enclosed in many of them were notes asking that the patriotic committees responsible for the gifts should be advised whether they were acceptable or not and what improvements could be effected in their selection. The excellent condition in which the great majority of the gifts arrived reflected the care with which packing had been carried out in New Zealand before dispatch."

DOMINION PRISONERS FROM CRETE.

American Woman's Interest

Three hundred New Zealand troops taken prisoner in Crete have been "adopted" by an American, Mrs. Ian Campbell, who for some time has been responsible for forwarding from Lisbon thousands of parcels of comforts for British prisoners of war in Germany.

The New Zealanders, after their arrival at a prison camp in Germany near the frontier of occupied France, made contact with Mrs. Campbell through the Red Cross.

She has now received their first messages of gratitude for comforts. The
